War Labor Board Faces Serious Challenge

FATE RESTS ON DECISIONS IN FOUR DISPUTES

Deadly Stabilization Blow Would Be Dealt If Wage Boosts Are Granted

C. I. O. CONDUCTS BATTLE

Labor Leaders Say Industry Makes Big Profit, Workers Not Getting Their Share

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — The War Labor Board, considering demands by 750,000 war workers for wage increases, today faced serious challenges to both its authority and wage stabilization program, established as a barrier to inflation.

Four disputes—"big steel," General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—are pending before the board and government officials believe that the WLB's decisions in the controversies will "make or break" the stabilization policy.

Wage increases demanded in the four disputes, if granted, would place approximately $500,000 a day in the hands of consumers and officials feel that this would be a deadly blow to the stabilization theory.

The "big steel"—U. S. Steel—dispute, first of the four to be decided by the WLB, will be presented at a public hearing tomorrow before the full board.

The U. S. Steel dispute is an outgrowth of the WLB order granting a 44 cents a day pay increase to the "little steel" workers. After the "little steel" workers had been granted the wage hike, the CIO's United Steel workers demanded that U. S. Steel give an identical increase to its 250,000 employees, but the company refused and forced the issue to the WLB.

CIO Opens Fight

Meanwhile, the CIO opened its fight for the wage increase in both the automobile and steel industries on the grounds that each industry is making huge war profits while workers are failing to receive their share.

In an editorial, the CIO News, official publication of the labor organization, demanded "an end to profiteering inequalities in the interest of national efficiency and morale to win the war."

A WLB panel already has recommended a 40-cents-a-day increase for the General Motors company's 225,000 employees and the 85,000 Chrysler workers would be entitled to an identical boost under the panel's findings. Considering the panel's recommendations for GMC, officials point out that the 105,000 Ford employees would be entitled to receive a salary increase of 12-cents-a-day.

Seeks $1 Hike

In each automotive dispute, the CIO's United Automobile Workers seeks a $1-a-day hike.

Derelict Blimp Lands In Frisco

Mystery Fogs Disappearance Of Crew Missing From Naval Aircraft

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17—Mystery today surrounded the disappearance of two Navy men, crew members missing from the derelict blimp which drifted in from the ocean and crashed into a suburban San Francisco street. The lighter-than-air craft, its bag ripped and motors idle, came to rest in Daly City just south of San Francisco. Two crewmen, who Navy officials said had been aboard the craft, were not in the blimp's cabin. All of the craft's parachutes and the rubber life raft were still in the gondola. Two life belts, however, were missing.

As the ship sank to the ground, it struck one house and two automobiles, but caused no damage. The ship's fabric completely covered one of the cars. Navy, Coast Guard and Civilian Defense volunteers immediately instituted a search for the two missing airmen along the coast and at sea.

The Navy said the blimp was equipped with a radio, but no distress signal had been sent. Grass and dirt were found stuck to one of the ship's engines, leading Navy officers to surmise that the craft struck a hilltop. One of the ship's depth charges was located on the Lakeside Country Club grounds, shaken loose when the airship hit the hilltop, the Navy explained. Another depth charge was still firmly secured to the ship. Navy spokesmen pointed out the depth charge was set to go off in water only and no one was endangered unless it had fallen in a nearby lake.

Hundreds of persons who watched the blimp drift slowly shoreward followed its course in cars and afoot to where it crashed and watched Navy men dismantle the ship and truck it back to its base where it will be put back into service.

BERLIN PAPERS WARN OF U. S. INVASION PLAN

LONDON, Aug. 17 — Berlin newspapers have begun to warn the German public that a large-scale invasion of the European continent by strong American forces must be expected, dispatches received in London disclosed today.

The Berlin correspondent of the Zurich newspaper, Neue Zuercher Zeitung, filed a dispatch stating that the Berliner Boersen Zeitung had published a warning that vast concentrations of American forces based in Britain are preparing for a continental invasion. "Nowhere outside the United States are there such big concentrations of American expeditionary forces as there are in Britain," the Berlin newspaper said.

"It is now apparent that after months of consultations the newly created American Army is aiming to test its mettle in a continental invasion."

The Swiss correspondent who filed the report to Zurich said that "publication of such a report in Berlin stresses that German military circles are reckoning with the possibility of an American invasion attempt."

HOT WATER RATIONING ORDERED FOR NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Aug. 17 — New Yorkers must struggle along for the duration of the war with less hot water for bathing, shaving and dish washing, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia advised today.

Because of the fuel shortage in the east, the mayor said, apartment house tenants will be given hot water only between 6:30 and 9 a. m. and 5 and 8 p. m.

The hot water rationing will become effective next week, it was said.

MEATLESS DAYS CONSIDERED BY CAPITAL CHIEFS

Agricultural Department Has Plans To Alleviate U. S. Stock Shortages

MEASURE IS TEMPORARY

Program To Be In Effect Only During Time Needed To Map Rationing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — Plans for "one or more voluntary meatless days each week" are being drawn up by agriculture department experts today to alleviate shortages until a "straight meat rationing" plan can be worked out.

Officials working on the scheme hope to have it approved by the War Production Board's food requirements committee tomorrow. The committee, headed by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, will meet then to decide what immediate rationing measures must be taken to solve the nation's meat distribution problem.

Agriculture sources said that the expedient "meatless day" program is needed to tide over "scarcity areas" until the seasonal October rise in livestock slaughter brings relief.

Ends in October

"The program should be ended at about the middle of October," they said, "even though the actual meat rationing plan may not be ready for operation until some time in January."

These agricultural sources explained that the high seasonal levels of slaughter from October to February could provide temporary relief from the "general meat shortage" between the end of the emergency plan and the start of rationing.

Experts said that the 11,000,000,000 of government inspected meat which will be available for civilian consumption during the year beginning January 1, 1943, is about equal to the average domestic consumption.

They warned, however, that "this supply is about 3,000,000,000 pounds less than what war-enriched consumers would buy at ceiling-low prices."

Rationing Necessary

"The fact that this supply is less than what consumers will want to buy in view of increased national income," Wickard's experts said, "will lead to inequitable distribution unless some form of rationing is undertaken now."

The "voluntary meatless day" plan, they said, will cut down consumption enough so that distributors, to sell their meats, must ship to shortage areas, "whether or not regional price ceilings make other areas more profitable."

More Jap Material Destroyed Than In Any Other Single Action, Chennault Says

CHUNGKING, Aug. 14—(Delayed)—American Army fliers, subjecting the Indo-Chinese port of Haiphong to a savage air attack, "burned up more war material there at one swoop than in any other single action in the war in the Far East," Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault said today.

The veteran Texas flier, who headed the "flying tigers" of the AVG before he became a member of the new U. S. Army air force in China, described the Haiphong and several other raids by the Americans during the 41 days since the USAAF in China was organized.

(The Japanese-controlled Saigon radio reported today that "Chinese aircraft" had raided Haiphong and Hanoi. If true, this means probably that the Americans have staged a new raid on Haiphong.)

MOTHER OF FIVE IN TOILS FOR OHIOAN'S DEATH

PORTSMOUTH, Aug. 17—Following the death of Harold Snyder, 20, from knife wounds, Detective Chief John Smith said manslaughter charges would be filed against Mrs. Marie Porter, 37, mother of five children.

Smith said the woman pleaded self-defense, admitting that she wrested the knife from Snyder and slashed him several times in the abdomen after he attempted to attack her with it.

Snyder was a flood defense construction worker and the father of a three-month-old daughter. Mrs. Porter, according to Detective Smith, said an argument ensued when Snyder brought a jug of wine to the Porter home and gave some to her son, Homer Porter, 18.

She contended that Snyder first struck her in the mouth with his fist, then whipped out the knife to cut her. She said she wrested the knife from him after forcing him to one knee.

Homer Porter and Jess Traylor, 28, a boarder, were detained by police pending investigation. Two women in Snyder's automobile were sought for questioning.

Jim Doolittle Throws Big Scare Into Berlin

LONDON, Aug. 17—A wave of speculation regarding the likelihood of immediate major American participation in large-scale air raids on Germany swept Europe today with disclosure that Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle now is in London.

The speculation embraced the whole of the continent—including Berlin—according to information in London, mainly because of the fact that it was "Jimmy" Doolittle who led a squadron of American B-25 two-engine bombers in a historic and devastating raid on Tokyo.

Gen. Doolittle himself was averse to any speculation regarding his visit beyond the fact he is here on "military duty."

It was revealed authoritatively that he came to London ten days ago and plans to return to the United States shortly.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Despite our efforts to stamp them out, rugged individualists are showing their heads again.

We've got this fellow Higgins in a bakery and this man Kooker who wants to fill the air with cargo planes.

The bureaucrats keep telling them "it's impossible" and they keep saying "all right—all right—we'll do it."

What kind of people are they anyway? Contrast their stubbornness with those wild-cat strikers who returned to a New Jersey war plant last week.

The Army and Navy took over the plant and the strikers went back saying "we'll be happy to work for Uncle Sam."

They telegraphed the President too. They said they were right behind him.

Isn't that ducky?

If we strike off medals for "intense patriotism" who do you think we're going to give them to—Higgins and Kaiser pestering the bureaucrats in Washington or those sterling souls who are "happy to work for Uncle Sam"?

The committee, summoned by Mohammed Ali Jinnah, league president, was expected to act on a resolution expressing the committee's attitude toward the congress party move designed to force British rule from India immediately.

Jinnah himself had said that should Britain compromise with the nationalists, led by the jailed Gandhi, the Moslems would "resist to the uttermost."

COLUMBUS MAN HERO OF CRASH THAT KILLS 17

PERU, Mass., Aug. 17—One of the worst tragedies in United States military aviation today had left only three survivors among 20 occupants of an Army transport plane which crashed in flames Saturday night on the 2,200-foot Garnet peak on Peru mountain in the Berkshires.

Army officials said the plane was on a routine mission out of Pope field, Ft. Bragg, N. C., and had made an intermediate stop at Mitchell field, N. Y.

Sergeant Robert Lee, of Columbus, O., one of the survivors, heroically saved two privates. His clothing completely burned from his body, Lee made two trips from the blazing wreckage to succor four others. Two were alive and their chances for recovery are good.

Lee was taken to a hospital in Pittsfield and he had an even chance for recovery, it was said.

Army officials said that an investigation of the crash had been started and that meanwhile some of the seventeen bodies already had been removed from the charred wreckage.

CONVICT BLAMES JUICY MELON FOR BAD LUCK

However, the prisoner fell into an irrigation ditch and broke his leg.

Today he was in the prison hospital minus good behavior credits. He is serving time on a Merced, Cal., grand theft conviction.

No New Gains Acknowledged For Nazi Legions Pushing Against Stalingrad

By International News Service
The "greatest victory yet achieved" against the Japanese has been won by United States forces in the Solomon islands, the London Evening Star said in a special Sydney dispatch today.

Coincident with a dispatch in the well-informed Yorkshire Post to the effect that American Marines who landed in the Solomons are receiving a steady flow of reinforcements, the Star said: "Despite the cautious tone of official communiques, it seems clear that the allies already have won in the land, sea and air operations in the Solomons the greatest victory yet achieved against the Japanese."

Sea Victory Needed

"It must be realized that the United States' hold on this area cannot be secure until allied naval units inflict a crushing defeat on the main Japanese fleet or until it is possible to develop newly-won air bases to a stage when it will permit land-based aircraft there to beat off sea attacks."

"It seems reasonable to assume that the allies have achieved their major initial objectives."

The Yorkshire Post's naval correspondent confirmed previous advice that the Marine landings took the Japanese entirely by surprise. The Japanese were attacked before they had time to make adequate preparations to meet an offensive assault.

The Solomons victory, this correspondent said, represented fulfillment of the first phase of an offensive attack upon the long line of Japanese island bases extending in an arc north of Australia and presenting a constant invasion threat to the island continent.

No Official News

But official secrecy still cloaked operations in the strategically-situated chain of islands lying northeast of Australia, where hard-bitten American leathernecks were writing a new and glorious chapter in their colorful history.

Official news from Russia was better than it had been.

Though the Germans drove hard against Stalingrad, and in the Caucasus, the Russian noonday communique did not acknowledge any new gains for the Nazi legions.

SOLONS ASKED TO BACK PENSION BILL SPONSOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — Faced by an opponent who has seized on the issue, Rep. Robert Ramspeck (D) Ga., author of the ill-fated "pensions-for-congressmen" bill is in danger of defeat in Georgia's September primaries and all members of the House of Representatives are being asked to donate funds to "save him."

The almost unprecedented proposal that congressmen contribute to a colleague's campaign is being advanced by Rep. Pete Jarman (D) Ala., who has written all members of the House, Republicans and Democrats alike.

Ramspeck, Democratic whip of the lower branch and a high-ranking administration leader in Congress, is opposed for re-nomination by Jere Wells, former superintendent of the Atlantic public schools.

Principal issue, according to Jarman, is Ramspeck's sponsorship of the highly controversial pensions legislation which was enacted and later repealed in an uproar of derision that reached its climax when "bundles for Congress" clubs were formed in several cities and marches on Washington were threatened.

Jim Doolittle Throws Big Scare Into Berlin

LONDON, Aug. 17—A wave of speculation regarding the likelihood of immediate major American participation in large-scale air raids on Germany swept Europe today with disclosure that Brig. Gen. James H. Doolittle now is in London.

The speculation embraced the whole of the continent—including Berlin—according to information in London, mainly because of the fact that it was "Jimmy" Doolittle who led a squadron of American B-25 two-motored bombers in a historic and devastating raid on Tokyo.

Gen. Doolittle himself was averse to any speculation regarding his visit beyond the fact he is here on "military duty."

It was revealed authoritatively that he came to London ten days ago and plans to return to the United States shortly.

The British press and public, keenly interested in rapid development of the American Air Force in Europe, linked Doolittle's visit with the statement issued by Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, commanding general of the United States Army Air Forces, which detailed the magnificent performances of American planes of all categories against numerical superiority in every theatre of war.

On every side was heard expressed conviction that the time for American participation in force in raids on Germany and the occupied countries of Europe is rapidly approaching.

Coincident with disclosure that General Doolittle has taken up a post on this main springboard of attack against Hitlerism, a copy of a new weekly publication called "British Ally," prepared by the British embassy in Kuibyshev, reached London.

It contained a statement by Air Marshal Sir Arthur Travers Harris, chief of the British bomber command, in which he said that aid given to Russia by mass bombings of Germany "is only the beginning."

"Soon the Americans will join us," he said. "And before the end of this summer the Germans will feel in real earnest the full force of our bombers."

The Germans, of course, had a ready answer. The British radio picked up a Frankfurter Zeitung broadcast which said:

"When the bulk of the German air force is no longer tied up in Russia, things beyond their wildest imagination will happen to the British. Then they will realize what the Luftwaffe really is. A column of fire will scorch the island."

PAIR CRIPPLED FOR LIFE GETS $151,259 IN SUIT

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 17—John Nelson, 21, of Mechanicville, N. Y., and Irene Smith, 19, of Watervliet, N. Y., crippled for life in an auto accident on the Saratoga road near Round Lake, April 21, 1940, received today the highest damage awards ever made against New York state for personal injuries—$151,259 to Nelson and $65,000 to Miss Smith.

The awards were granted by the Court of Claims Judge William E. Fitzsimmons, who also allowed nine additional claims, the largest number on record growing out of a single accident and aggregating $151,259.75 making the total awards $151,259.75.

The accident occurred in early evening at a curve on Route 9 where there had been a wash-out, and a state highway maintenance crew had dumped a "fill" of sand and gravel and erected a barricade.

The car, with six youthful occupants on their way to dine and dance skidded when the driver, 19-year-old William F. Reinger, of Mechanicville, applied his brakes, and it somersaulted down a steep embankment and crashed into a telephone pole. The evidence showed that the car was brand new and in perfect condition and going less than 40 miles an hour. The court held that the accident was due to negligence on the part of the state.

Traffic Delay Balks Quorum At Assembly Of All India Moslem League

BOMBAY, Aug. 17 — A scheduled Moslem resolution warning Britain not to temporize or compromise with Mohandas K. Gandhi's congress party appeared blocked today when traffic delays prevented a quorum attendance of the All-India Moslem League committee.

The committee, summoned by Mohammed Ali Jinnah, league president, was expected to act on a resolution expressing the committee's attitude toward the congress party move designed to force British rule from India immediately.

Jinnah himself had said that should Britain compromise with the nationalists, led by the jailed Gandhi, the Moslems would "re-sist to the uttermost."

COLUMBUS MAN HERO OF CRASH THAT KILLS 17

PERU, Mass., Aug. 17—One of the worst tragedies in United States military aviation today had left only three survivors among 20 occupants of an Army transport plane which crashed in flames Saturday night on the 2,200-foot Garnet peak on Peru mountain in the Berkshires.

Army officials said the plane was on a routine mission out of Pope field, Ft. Bragg, N. C., and had made an intermediate stop at Mitchell field, N. Y.

Sergeant Robert Lee, of Columbus, O., one of the survivors, heroically saved two privates. His clothing completely burned from his body, Lee made two trips from the blazing wreckage to succor four others. Two were alive and their chances for recovery are good.

Lee was taken to a hospital in Pittsfield and he had an even chance for recovery, it was said.

Army officials said that an investigation of the crash had been started and that meanwhile some of the seventeen bodies already had been removed from the charred wreckage.

CONVICT BLAMES JUICY MELON FOR BAD LUCK

FOLSOM PRISON, Cal., Aug. 17—Earl McAllister, 22 year old inmate of California's Folsom state prison, today blamed a juicy watermelon for his latest streak of bad luck.

McAllister, a trusty, stole from his quarters in the prison's filtration plant to the penitentiary garden, intending to "borrow" a watermelon, according to Warden Clyde Plummer.

However, the prisoner fell into an irrigation ditch and broke his leg.

Today he was in the prison hospital minus good behavior credits. He is serving time on a Merced, Cal., grand theft conviction.

No New Gains Acknowledged For Nazi Legions Pushing Against Stalingrad

By International News Service
The "greatest victory yet achieved" against the Japanese has been won by United States forces in the Solomon islands, the London Evening Star said in a special Sydney dispatch today.

Coincident with a dispatch in the well-informed Yorkshire Post to the effect that American Marines who landed in the Solomons are receiving a steady flow of reinforcements, the Star said:

"Despite the cautious tone of official communiques, it seems clear that the allies already have won in the land, sea and air operations in the Solomons the greatest victory yet achieved against the Japanese."

Sea Victory Needed
"It must be realized that the United States' hold on this area cannot be secure until allied naval units inflict a crushing defeat on the main Japanese fleet or until it is possible to develop newly-won air bases to a stage when it will permit land-based aircraft there to beat off sea attacks."

"It seems reasonable to assume that the allies have achieved their major initial objectives."

The Yorkshire Post's naval correspondent confirmed previous advice that the Marine landings took the Japanese entirely by surprise. The Japanese were attacked before they had time to make adequate preparations to meet an offensive assault.

The Solomons victory, this correspondent said, represented fulfillment of the first phase of an offensive attack upon the long line of Japanese island bases extending in an arc north of Australia and presenting a constant invasion threat to the island continent.

No Official News

But official secrecy still cloaked operations in the strategically situated chain of islands lying northeast of Australia, where hard-bitten American leathernecks were writing a new and glorious chapter in their colorful history.

Official news from Russia was better than it had been.

Though the Germans drove hard against Stalingrad, and in the Caucasus, the Russian noonday communique did not acknowledge any new gains for the Nazi legions.

SOLONS ASKED TO BACK PENSION BILL SPONSOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17 — Faced by an opponent who has seized on the issue, Rep. Robert Ramspeck (D) Ga., author of the ill-fated "pensions-for-congressmen" bill is in danger of defeat in Georgia's September primaries and all members of the House of Representatives are being asked to donate funds to "save him."

The almost unprecedented proposal that congressmen contribute to a colleague's campaign is being advanced by Rep. Pete Jarman (D) Ala., who has written all members of the House, Republicans and Democrats alike.

Ramspeck, Democratic whip of the lower branch and a high-ranking administration leader in Congress, is opposed for renomination by Jere Wells, former superintendent of the Atlantic public schools.

Principal issue, according to Jarman, is Ramspeck's sponsorship of the highly controversial pensions legislation which was enacted and later repealed in an upsurge of derision that reached its climax when "bundes for Congress" clubs were formed in several cities and marches on Washington were threatened.

BOY, 15, HELD FOR ROBBERY OF CITY STORE

Youth Confesses Robbery, Says Cash Provided Him A Good Time

RADIO PROVES UNDOING

Sale Of Instrument Places Police On Trail And Crime Is Confessed

A 15-year-old East Main street boy is held in Pickaway county jail awaiting hearing before Juvenile Judge Lemuel B. Weldon on a charge of burglary and larceny of the Harpster and Yost hardware store last Monday night. The youth is Bernard Lockard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lockard, 122 1/2 East Main street.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady reported Monday that the Lockard youth had signed a typewritten confession, his signature being witnessed by McCrady, Patrolman Elmer Merriman and James Yost, proprietor of the hardware store.

The youth said he obtained about $10 and a portable radio, efforts to sell the latter leading to his arrest and subsequent confession.

Hides In Store

Chief McCrady said that young Lockard had hidden in a lavatory of the hardware store Monday just before the store was closed for the day. He raised the lavatory window, put a can of disinfectant and a can of cleanser, which had been on the window sill, on the floor to provide the appearance of an outside robbery, McCrady said the youth told him.

The burglary happened between 6:30 and 9:45 p. m., the confession said, the youth not being definite concerning the exact hour. He left the store by removing an iron bar which braces the rear entrance.

Young Lockard had been seen in the store Monday afternoon, so he was picked up by McCrady and questioned concerning his burglary, but was released without charge. After signing his confession, which was obtained Saturday night, the youth told Chief McCrady that he had had the stolen money in his pocket when he was taken to police headquarters Tuesday for questioning.

Disposes Of Cash

The chief was preparing to take his fingerprints when he told the boy to walk into the hall to wash his hands. Young Lockard was quoted by the chief as saying that he walked to a window beside the wash bowl and tossed the money, which was all in silver, into the area between City Hall and the Clifton garage building. After release he walked to the side of the building and picked up the loot.

Chief McCrady gave Patrolman Merriman credit for 'breaking' the burglary, declaring that Merriman had found where the youth had tried to sell the radio and finally where he had made a sale. Jack Wise, who helps operate his father's auto parts business on the West Main street extension, paid the youth $10 for the radio. Lockard had appeared at the Spur filling station, West Main street, and had offered to sell the radio there, but couldn't find a buyer.

Spur station employees and Wise gave Patrolman Merriman information which led to Lockard's arrest. The youth finally confessed after being face to face with the men to whom he had tried to sell and had sold the stolen radio. This is believed to be the only article stolen from the store except for the money, said by Mr. Yost to be $9.90.

The Lockard youth told McCrady that he had bought two devices for his bicycle which cost him $5.60 and that he had "had a lot of fun spending money for different things."

He was lodged in county jail on orders of Judge Weldon.

McCrady said that the boy had denied any part in an earlier attempt to break the safe of the Grand theatre. This burglary attempt remains unsolved.

VACANT HOUSE BURNS ON FARM OF FRED COOK

Vacant dwelling on the farm of Fred Cook, Walnut township, was destroyed by flames early Sunday, the fire believed to have been started by transients who had kindled a blaze on the wood floor of the building. The dwelling had stood idle for several years and had been a gathering place for 'knights of the road'.

Cook told firemen that he had planned to raze it for salvage. Circleville rural truck went to the scene, the call being received after a passing motorist informed Patrolman Alva Shastien of the flames.

The call came at 7:10 a. m., 10 minutes after Chief Robert Wolf returned to duty after a two week vacation.

OCTOBER 3 SET AS FREE DATE ON WHEAT FLY

Pickaway county wheat farmers were urged Monday by agriculture authorities to plant their wheat after October 3 in an effort to combat the Hessian fly menace which became increasingly damaging this year.

F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent, said that October 3 has been designated as the county's "fly free" date. This is two days later than last year.

Blair pointed out that the percentage of straw damaged by the Hessian fly this year is greater than in recent years. More than 41 percent of straw in the county was infested, this figure being much higher than the 18.2 percent of infestation observed a year ago. In 1940's harvest the total of infestation was only 6 percent.

The average state infestation in 1940 was 4.2 percent, in 1941 it was 12.1 percent and in 1942, 25.7 percent, showing that the Hessian fly was much more prevalent in Pickaway county during the year than in most other Ohio counties.

The Fall brood of Hessian fly does not infest the late sowed wheat, but the Spring brood attacks all wheat regardless of when sown.

The increasing popularity of the combined harvester and thresher seems to be partly responsible, farm experts say, for the problem. Grain shattered in the harvesting operation becomes beaten into the soil and sprouts with Fall rains. The young wheat receives the eggs of the Fall brood of fly. From this plant emerges the Spring brood to infest the late sowed crop.

Field surveys made in 1941 revealed the heaviest fly infestations in Pickaway, Butler, Warren, Miami, Darke and Greene counties. Several western Ohio counties had fly larvae in 20 percent or more of the wheat stalks. In Wood, Wyandot and Preble counties control measures had greatly reduced fly infestation.

FOUR COUNTY MEN LEAVE FOR ARMY TRAINING

Four Pickaway countians accepted two weeks ago at Fort Benning, Ga. Young Hundley entered service 14 months ago and has been stationed on the west coast since that time. He came to Circleville from a camp at Walla Walla, Wash. Hundley is training in infantry instruction. He expects to remain in Circleville eight days.

Alex S. Watt, son of the Rev. Richard Watt, East High street, has been promoted from captain to major in the U. S. Army Engineering Corps. He is stationed in Cincinnati at the present time.

Private Ross Hamilton, in Air Force training, has been transferred from Syracuse, N. Y., to Mitchell field, Long Island. Mrs. Hamilton who has been visiting her husband in Syracuse has returned to her home in Jackson township.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Legg, Circleville route 4, have received word from their son, Private Henry D. Legg, saying that he has arrived safely in Canada. He left Circleville in April and has been in training for Army service at Camp Claiborne, La.

POLITICAL SIGNS TO BE BANNED ON HIGHWAYS

Candidates for office in Pickaway county, the district and the state will soon be informed by Hal G. Sours, Ohio director of highways, that no political signs may be erected along highway right-of-way limits for the duration of the campaign.

Sours points out that in the primaries there seemed to be an unusual number of signs nailed on trees along the state's roads. This practice will be stopped, he hinted.

"No matter how anxious a candidate may be to receive election he does not do himself much good by using trees for sign posts," Sours said, "since many persons resent the practice and will likely vote for the candidate's opponent."

CITY WAR CHEST CAMPAIGN TO BE LAST FOR YEAR

Other Fund Drives Are To Be Prohibited, Declare Local Officials

BREHMER HEADS TEAMS

Florist Will Direct Efforts Of Solicitation—Assistants Are Selected

Citizens of Circleville and Pickaway county were informed Monday by the Pickaway County Community Chest organization that its solicitation, which is scheduled to open September 17, will be the only one made during the next 12 months for agencies devoted to public purposes.

Trustees of the campaign voted unanimously to "proceed with the Pickaway County Community Chest to cover any and all existing agencies for which public solicitations are made or which may arise out of the emergency for a minimum of the next 12 month period."

This action was taken to allay fears some persons may have that a Community Fund campaign will be followed by other fund seeking drives. Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools and chairman of the Community Fund, declared: "Success of our campaign means that solicitations for such purposes during the next year will not be necessary. Our tentative budget includes money for each organization which operates for public purposes in our community. No other organization will need to plan its own campaign here, since we will be prepared to provide all with sufficient money to carry on their work."

Robert L. Brehmer, North Court street was appointed chairman of the important committee embracing solicitation from civic, fraternal and religious organizations in Circleville. His aides will be Miss Margaret Rooney and Dwight Steele, this committee of three to set up the organization it requires for functioning.

Publicity committee, which will prepare newspaper releases concerning the campaign and establish a speakers' bureau, will be headed by Mr. Fischer, with its additional members including Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Harold J. Bowers, Brice Connell, Miss Eleanor Ryan and Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker.

Community Fund is seeking $49,680 for the next year's work. Every person in Pickaway county and Circleville will be asked for assistance.

Trustees, 14 of whom attended the Sunday afternoon session in Farm Bureau offices, will meet

LOCAL TEACHER STUDIES PLANES AT OHIO STATE

Fred Watts, Circleville high school faculty member, is one of 60 Ohio high school instructors hard at work at Ohio State university preparing for the course in pre-flight aviation they will teach their own students this Fall.

Most of the teachers are only a "jump"—three weeks to be exact—ahead of their students, because few have had previous experience of the kind. But they are ready to do some extra work to offer the new course requested by the federal government and the state department of education as a part of the war program.

While making an intensive study of such subjects as aerodynamics, navigation, airplane engines, communications and the vocational and social implications of aviation the teachers at the same time are making models and apparatus to use in their classes.

The aeronautics training will be given in Circleville high school to boys and girls of the upper two classes with training in sciences and mathematics if a sufficient number enrolls for the course. A full unit of credit will be given by the board of education.

JULIUS S. VAN HEYDE, 76, DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Heart disease caused death Sunday at his home in Columbus of Julius Simon (Dude) Van Heyde, 76, a native of Circleville but a resident of Columbus for the last 60 years. Mr. Van Heyde lived at 1057 Franklin avenue.

He had worked all day Saturday, but was stricken fatally early in the morning. In his barber shop on East Spring street he had served many state and national figures including President McKinley and many of Ohio's governors.

Survivors include his widow, Teresa; four sons, Joseph, George, Leo and Otto, two brothers and a sister. The son, George, is a former Ohio State university athlete and coach at St. Mary's high school, Columbus. He is now in Army service at Fort Knox, Ky.

He was a charter member of the Columbus Eagles' lodge and was affiliated with Elks, Knights of Columbus and Buckeye Court, Catholic order of Foresters.

Funeral will be Wednesday at 9 a. m. in St. Patrick's Catholic church.

again next Sunday at 1:30 p. m. to work out additional committees and other details which will come up during the week. The big solicitation committee will be called for the following Monday night in the courthouse to receive instructions concerning their duties.

Chief talking point in the campaign, trustees believe, is the fact that the Community Chest solicitation and gift will be the only one necessary this year in the district.

STATE DEFENSE COUNCIL OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

Ohio State Council of Defense was observing its first anniversary Monday as Acting Director Ralph H. Stone announced that civilian and industrial protection institutes would be held soon in counties recognized as potential target areas.

Calling on the Circleville Defense Council to emphasize the protection side of the defense program, Stone said there is a "definite need for educating the public as to the importance of civilian defense."

He said that representatives of the State Defense Council would conduct the institutes, designed to educate men and women in methods of protecting the lives of their neighbors should enemy airplanes strike.

As the State Defense Council rounded out its first year of operation, Stone recalled that 12 months ago "a large segment of the public did not realize the seriousness of the war abroad and how close it was coming to home."

The situation today, however, "is quite different," he declared. "Today finds Ohioans on the alert on foreign and home fronts, united in one great effort and imbued with but one thought which transcends all others—that of winning the war."

Today—one year after its birth—the Ohio State Council of Defense has recommended 879 local defense councils for certification by Gov. John W. Bricker. More than 125,000 volunteers have been trained for emergency service, an air raid communications system has been established, and a number of programs developed to make the home front secure.

ALLEN FUNERAL

Funeral services for Bert Allen, 53, of Brice, who was killed early Saturday on Route 104 near the Franklin county line, were held Monday at 2 p. m. with burial at Canal Winchester. Mr. Allen, employed in the state highway department engineer's office, was fatally injured when his automobile struck a culvert.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. John E. Zarbaugh, and two brothers, Theodore and Charles Allen.

Accidents to trains at highway-railroad grade crossings in the past six years have resulted in 101 railroad employees losing their lives.

AAA OFFICIALS CALLED TO MEET IN CHILLICOTHE

AAA officials, including chairmen, fieldwomen and district fieldmen, have been called to attend an important meeting August 28 in Chillicothe. Elmer F. Kruse, state AAA chief, will address the gathering, meeting the combined group in a morning session beginning at 9:30 o'clock, and the War Board chairmen, which includes John G. Boggs of Circleville, in an afternoon conference.

Other meetings are being held throughout the state in the latter part of the month, but the Chillicothe session being nearest to Circleville will attract the local group.

Doolittle, one of America's top flight heroes, has arrived in Britain. There were no details—but presence in London of Doolittle, the man who headed the April 18 raid on Tokyo, added the dramatic touch to the day's war news.

The Solomons still held the spotlight, however.

The Yorkshire Post called allied successes in the Solomons the fulfillment of the first phases of an offensive attack against the long line of island bases threatening Australia—and said the allied attack came before the enemy was set against an offensive in the Solomons.

Second Front

There was a growing feeling that the Pacific offensive against the Japs had forced a second front on the enemy in an area where he definitely did not want one.

The Russian communique told of continued fierce fighting before Stalingrad, where the Nazis are using a giant pincer move in their attempt to add the big industrial city on the Volga to their list of conquered places.

The Russians acknowledged that in the Kletska area, in the big Don elbow, they were fighting "heavy defensive engagements," a phrase that has an ominous sound. No withdrawal was mentioned, however.

Northeast of Kotelnikovo—where the southern arm of the German pincers has run into a stone wall—a series of Nazi attacks was repelled by hard-fighting Soviets who clung strongly to their positions.

There was heavy fighting near Mineralnye Vody, where the Nazis are threatening the big Grozny oil fields, which produces 70 percent of Russia's oil.

The Nazis, however, learned at Malok that they can expect from any oil fields they conquer. The Soviets earlier had acknowledged loss of Malok—but they said that if Adolf Hitler expected to find oil there, he was scheduled for a great disappointment.

The Russians applied the torch to all oil installations at Malok. If it becomes necessary, they will do the same thing at Grezny.

REPORT DELAYED ON LOCAL BOND SALE CAMPAIGN

Earl A. Smith, director of U. S. War Bond and Stamp sales in Pickaway county, Monday, was awaiting reports from various financial institutions of the district concerning sales during the last week.

A concerted effort was made by some of Circleville's retail stores during the week to speed Bond and Stamp sales, but to date Smith has reports from only a few of the business houses.

Ohio Fuel Gas company did a large amount of Bond and Stamp sale business, reporting about $1,000 in sales during this week. This is the highest report the drive chairman has received of the week's activity.

Banks and postoffices of every village in the county are expected to file reports weekly of sales. The August quota for the county is $42,500.

Monday was reported as still in a semi-hysterical state.

Col. Herlihy, an infantry commander at Fort Huachuca, has returned Frank Thomas, former county attorney, to defend his daughter against any charges brought against her.

Saying that he had found marks on his daughter's body, the army officer declared that he was convinced that she was fighting for her life.

Before her collapse the girl told investigators that Capt. Carr had beaten her. The shooting commenced a quarrel which began while the two were on a visit to Agua Prieta, Mexican town across the border from Douglas.

MEATLESS DAYS CONSIDERED BY CAPITAL CHIEFS

Agricultural Department Has
Plans To Alleviate U. S.
Stock Shortages

"These studies," officials said, "along with actual experiments must decide how many meatless days will be necessary each week to absorb the consumer demand for 3,000,000,000 pounds of meat that production cannot answer."

Other agriculture officials suggested that regional adjustments upward of market price ceilings in shortage areas far from the sources of supply may be necessary to insure equity in national meat distribution.

"Production of meat this year will be sufficient to supply nutritional requirements," the Agriculture Department reassured, "if it is properly distributed."

EACH VOTE CAST COST COUNTY MORE THAN $1

Pickaway county's primary election, conducted last Tuesday, cost taxpayers more than $1 for each ballot cast. Figures disclosed Monday by Russell Inler, clerk of the board, show that the primary cost $3,690.50 with only 3,079 votes being recorded.

Biggest item of expense was $2,104.50 for employment of precinct presiding judges and clerks. Other expenditures included $598, election board salaries; $80, room rent; $295, ballots; $238, tally sheets, poll books, etc., and $75 for miscellaneous expense.

The primary was one of the most costly county elections in recent years, at least so far as the expense per ballot is considered.

HAROLD E. YOUNG DIES AT EAST RINGGOLD

Harold E. Young, 27, died Saturday at 11 p. m. at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shirley Norman, East Ringgold, after a long illness of tuberculosis. He returned in May to the Norman home from Arizona where he had gone last fall for the benefit of his health.

Mr. Young was for nine years a mechanic for the Simon Stout garage of Stoutsville.

Born in Royalton, he was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Emanuel Young of Stoutsville.

He is survived by his widow, the former Letha Norman, and one daughter, Patricia Jo, who is two years old.

Other survivors are six sisters, Mrs. Raymond Spangler, East Ringgold; Mrs. William Biggs, Mrs. Lloyd Rife, Mrs. Hugh McKenney and Miss Ora Young of Stoutsville, and three brothers, Charles, at home, and Millard and Carl, who are in army service.

Funeral services will be Tuesday at 3 p. m. at the United Brethren church of East Ringgold. The Rev. Orville Gibbs will officiate. Burial in charge of Deffenbaugh will be at the Imier cemetery on Route 56, 10 miles southeast of Circleville in Saltcreek township.

The body will be at the Norman home, where friends may call, until the time of the services.

WILLIAM HEFFNER ENLISTS

William B. Heffner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Heffner, 116 East Union street, has volunteered for the U. S. Army enlisted reserve corps. County draft board received notice Monday from Fort Hayes of his enlistment. Young Heffner is a student at Kenyon college, Gambier, O., and will be permitted under draft law to complete his education unless there is immediate need for his services.

JINNAH WARNING STRIKES SNAG

nah might have to declare that adoption of a formal resolution was impossible, but issue a statement concurred in by members present—a move which inevitably would have a lesser effect on the 90,000,000 Moslems in India than formal action by the entire committee.

Thus the situation in India, seething with riots and disorders since the congress party's decision to embark on a widespread campaign of civil disobedience, grew still more complicated at a time when disturbances were becoming fewer.

Firmness of the government's grip on the decision was tightened with application in all of Bombay province of an ordinance permitting whipping and even execution for sabotage.

This same ordinance is applicable in all the main trouble districts of India.

THEFT OF GROCERIES LANDS MAN IN JAIL

Jack Chandler of Williamsport RFD is under arrest in city jail, booked for investigation, while charges are prepared that he walked out of a West Main street grocery without paying for merchandise which he carried with him.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady said that Wilbur Funk, grocer, would file charges against Chandler who was arrested Saturday night.

Chandler, McCrady said, selected foodstuffs from the store a week ago and ran out the door without making payment. He did the same thing last Saturday night, but was followed by the grocery operator. Chandler escaped in a crowd, but was identified after being arrested later for intoxication investigation. He did not have the groceries, but they were located later in a West Main street establishment.

WIFE GAINS DIVORCE

Divorce decree was granted Monday in an entry signed by Judge Meeker Terwilliger of Common Pleas court to Mrs. Emma Margaret Stiers of Walnut township from John W. Stiers of Circleville. Mr. Stiers charged neglect of duty. She was granted custody of a small daughter.

WILLIAM BETTS CHOSEN LEGION POLICE CAPTAIN

William Betts Jr., past commander of Howard Hall post, American Legion, has been chosen captain of the Legion's auxiliary highway patrol unit to succeed James T. Shea who has entered Army service.

Shea, a Marine in the last war, left for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, last week thus leaving the patrol post open. Shea also left vacant command of the Legion post, this job not yet being filled.

SUGAR COUPON NO. 8 GOOD FOR FIVE POUNDS

OPA announced Monday that sugar coupon No. 8, good beginning August 23, will be good for five pounds in the 10-week period which ends October 31. The decision, while not changing the basic ration of one-half pound for each person each week, will make larger units available.

Much sugar has been packed in five, ten and 25-pound cartons, and the OPA believes that the ruling will permit sale of many of these containers thus reducing the stock without resacking and weighing.

Packages of these sizes were prepared prior to the start of rationing.

Pickaway county rationing office has not yet received official notice of the change, although the decision has been announced nationally by the Office of Price Administration.

Stamps No. 6 and 7, each of which is good for two pounds, will be used until midnight August 22. Consumers received a two-pound bonus with Stamp No. 7.

DRAW $100 FINE

James Garvey, 20, of near Circleville, was fined $100 and costs Monday in Mayor Harold Brown's court in Chillicothe for operating a motor vehicle when under influence of alcohol.

findings, it will grant the increase recommended because the panel said the boosts were justified under the board's stabilization policy. The policy, established in the "little steel" decision, is designed to maintain workers' purchasing power at levels of January, 1941.

The GMC controversy will be presented at a public hearing as soon as possible after completion of the "big steel" case. WLB officials indicated that the GMC dispute will be argued within two weeks.

MARTHA M. PHERSON, 88 DIES AT COUNTRY HOME

Mrs. Martha M. Pherson, widow of Robert Pherson, died Monday at her home in Monroe township. Mrs. Pherson was 88.

Survivors include three sons, Walter, Elbert and George; three daughters, Mrs. Ellen Southward, Mrs. Rilla Baker and Mrs. Grace Downs, and one brother, Edward Ridenour. All survivors are Pickaway county residents.

Funeral will be Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in the Pherson church, the Rev. G. L. Troutman of Circleville officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery by E. T. Snyder, Mount Sterling.

BOWERS STARTS WIDE HUNT FOR INSTRUCTORS

In an effort to alleviate a serious situation concerning teacher employment, Harold J. Bowers, Ashville, an official of the state department of education, went to Akron Sunday evening to start a series of visits to large Ohio cities to help compile a list of unemployed persons who have had teacher training and may be induced to return to the profession.

Bowers made the Akron trip with his chief, Kenneth Ray, director of the state department.

The Ashville man said that a list of 175 teachers available for employment had been completed, but that it would be exhausted before Wednesday.

Pickaway county's teacher situation may be relieved somewhat Monday night when several boards of education meet to consider a list obtained last week by Superintendent George D. McDowell in a visit to Columbus.

About 12 vacancies remain in the county system with school classes gradually drawing nearer. September 8 is the date set for school to start.

Bowers said that he and Ray will go to Youngstown, Cleveland, Toledo and other population centers to try to add to their list of available teachers. "The situation in the state has never been so severe as it is now," Bowers, former Williamsport school superintendent, said.

The Army, calls into defense jobs and to more lucrative positions in other walks of life combine to make the teacher situation critical.

Circleville is one of the few cities in Ohio which has no problem at the present time, although it is possible that Army calls may force some juggling in assignments in the high school before the next term is very far advanced.

U. S. PLANES HIT HAIPHONG PORT

indicates to me that we have the men here who can do the job." Gen. Chennault surmised that, to beat the Japanese, the Americans need about "one fourth as much as they (the Japs) have" in equipment.

To meet the new American threat in China, the hard-bitten founder of the famed AVG said, the Japanese brought into China some of their best fighting formations.

"The two Japanese pursuit groups which we have been fighting during the past few days in men and equipment are immensely superior to anything the Japanese command ever showed us in Burma," Chennault said.

Jap Plane Improved

"The improved Japanese zero is an improved fighting plane. Not only are they balanced with maximum precision, they are the product of the most painstaking and careful designing and building of which the Japanese genius for copying and adapting is capable, and they are armed with 20-millimeter cannon and 13 millimeter machine guns.

"Moreover, the new Japanese formations are showing in their fighting the results of improved technical equipment and more ingenious tactical formations.

"They have learned a lot from the Germans. Without doubt there are Luftwaffe officers in Tokyo doing their best to take the kinks out of the air force of Germany's far eastern ally.

"Particularly the Nipponese fliers are being trained in the formal formations and rigid discipline of the Luftwaffe."

DRAFT PAPERS TO BE SENT TO 500 TUESDAY

Five hundred youthful Pickaway countians, who registered in the fifth Selective Service sign-up, will receive occupational questionnaires in Tuesday's mail. The papers, filled out completely in ink and notarized, must be returned within 10 days.

To assist the youths of 18, 19 and 20 in answering any puzzling questions, the county advisory committee will meet in the courthouse the afternoon of August 26.

Occupational questionnaires are being sent to this group even though boys under 20 are not eligible for Army training. About 120 of the total of 500 are 20 and may be classified any time and called into service after all single men of the 35-45 year old bracket have been called.

Draft board was busy Monday and will be busy all day Tuesday, assisting men of the 35-45 group in completing occupational questionnaires submitted to the board were incomplete, so registrants have been asked to report not later than Tuesday to have their papers filled out.

FIANCEE SLAIN, GIRL TO FACE MURDER CHARGE

BISBEE, Ariz., Aug. 17—With an inquest into the death of Capt. David Carr called for today, Deputy County Attorney Norman Herring indicated he would file murder charges against the army officer's fiancée, Margaret Herlihy, daughter of another army officer, Lt. Col. Edward G. Herlihy.

The girl already is accused of assault with a deadly weapon. This charge was filed by County Attorney John Ross shortly before Capt. Carr died Saturday from the effects of two bullet wounds.

There was little probability that Miss Herlihy would attend the inquest. She suffered a complete nervous collapse following the shooting of Capt. Carr in her home in Douglas, Ariz., early Saturday.

Now, About This Business of Advertising . . .

There are a great many people who think that advertising isn't very necessary, now that so much merchandise has either been put out of production or curtailed, and the rest is protected by price ceilings. The fact is that folks want to know more about the substitutes they can use . . . they want more information about how to conserve what they already have. They want to buy quality goods and they want to know where to buy. Tell them in your advertising!

BIG PUSH?

IF A RECENT broadcast in Moscow is taken seriously, there may yet be something doing this year—something big. It was announced the other day that Germany would be faced by 15,000,000 men, 85,000 tanks, and 100,000 guns and 50,000 airplanes. Something could be done with an outfit like that. An onslaught of one-third as much power would stop Hitler's progress toward the Caucasus and turn him back to save his western front.

At the same time, however, Moscow radio urged Britain and America to hurry with the front they have promised. Moscow is doubtless right when it says that "now is not the time to wait." But there must be still more waiting, because the western Allies are not yet ready, and there is no clear intimation of when they will be.

The offensive action in the Pacific Islands is a good start.

HOTELS

FOUR huge Atlantic City hotels, the Claridge, the Ritz-Carlton, the Traymore, and the Chalfonte-Haddon, said to be the world's largest seaside resort hotel, have been taken over by the government. This follows on the heels of the similar appropriation of two large Chicago hotels.

This probably eases the minds of the managers. Travel for pleasure is out for the duration, and these great plants should not stand idle if they can help to carry on the war. Walls have ears, according to the old saying. If they should develop voices also, these famous inns would have some interesting tales to tell about the things likely to take place within their walls.

AIR ARGOSIES

IT HAS been proved that we can put armies into the air. Now it remains to be demonstrated that we can put freight trains there. It can be done, no doubt, on a small scale, but what of the large scale? Something comparable to Tennyson's "argosies of magic sails dropping down with costly bales," but far bigger and heavier.

We shall soon find out, thanks to the adventurous spirit of the War Production Board at Washington. It has approved the building of 500 seventy-ton flying boats as cargo carriers, and the experimental construction of 200-ton air freighters, dwarfing Glenn Martin's experiment. And there is Henry J. Kaiser, the West Coast shipbuilder. He will try anything once in the realm of transport by land, water or air, and has an almost miraculous record of success.

It should be a wonderful world after this war, if the nations don't exhaust themselves meanwhile to the point of losing their enterprise.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON.—Director Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is developing an intensity of informativeness that it is beginning to worry some folk high in the Washington administration.

There are a couple of theories concerning the proper function of an organization like OWI. One is that, as in information bureau, its business is to suppress information—to operate as a censorship, in short.

The other is that its essential duty is to spread good cheer all over the land—to convince the public that everything is being elegantly managed; that all it needs to do is to stand pat behind the managers and presently they will report the complete success of perfectly handled jobs.

Davis' system does not fit either of these two prescriptions. His thesis is that his stunt is to dish out all the information there is—good news and bad news alike. This would be satisfactory to ad-and nothing but taxes are to be paid? Elmer Davis envisions that era. Away—way, long ago in the last war, Davis was a newspaperman with the Ford peace expedition, bound for Europe to end that conflict.

The group failed of purpose and formed a society, consisting of its national proportion, called the "Vindicating Sons and Sisters (the latter being wives and newspaper gals) of St. Vitus."

Davis With Group

Well, Elmer drafted this bunch's charter.

Rosika Schwimmer invented that Ford peace party. I've heard from her since the current war popped. She says that, if that plan had not failed (absolutely unjustifiable) today's conflict would not have eventuated. Do your own guessing as to the correctness of that viewpoint.

Wait until later during the war!—with its taxes!—and regulations! Elmer Davis tips us off to what's coming. He verges on being too informative.

Elmer was a Ford peace partyite!

Now picture him as an apostle of belligerence!

I know about his Ford peace party-itis. I was along with him. I don't think he believed in the thing, but he was with it.

CONQUERING BIG OBSTACLES

WASHINGTON — Real fact about the plans of dynamic Henry F. Kaiser, the miracle shipbuilder, is that at first he was given the green light on building cargo planes — with a great big IF attached. That IF was — provided he could find the critical materials to build his flying freighters.

In other words, the brass hats gave their O. K. with their tongues in their cheeks. For they knew that with plants closing down all over the country for lack of steel and other materials, Kaiser, no matter what kind of a miracle man, would not have much chance.

They did not realize, however, whom they were up against. Kaiser immediately hired the best minerals expert he could find, Herbert G. Moulton, and began digging into the metals bottleneck. One of these is chrome, used for hardening steel, especially in such vital parts of an airplane as the propeller collar.

And Kaiser found that a ferron-silica furnace he was building on the West Coast, by changing its lining, could refine all the chrome he needed.

He also dug up figures showing that between the United States, Canada and Great Britain, the United Nations produce 90 percent of the world's nickel or about 165,000 tons annually, while Germany and the Axis produce only about 13,000 tons.

So Kaiser, determined to carry out his plan of producing giant cargo planes, took two letters to William Batt, head of WPB's Materials Division. One letter showed how he planned to get chrome. The other letter pointed out that if Germany could scrape along on 13,000 tons of nickel a year, the United States should be able to find enough nickel out of 165,000 tons to make cargo planes.

TRANSPORTATION ALL-IMPORTANT

"It's a question of putting first things first," Kaiser told Batt and other WPB officials. "I figure that when we're fighting 8,000 miles away, the very first thing we need is communications, in other words radio, to give orders to our troops."

"And the second thing we need, I figure, is to get supplies to them. Getting the supplies there is more important than anything except communications, first because they can't fight without supplies, second because there is no use making tanks and machine guns and then letting them rust in the United States for lack of transportation."

"So if you want to get the stuff over to the fighting front, you ought to be able to spare a little nickel for me to make engines for cargo planes."

Mr. Batt studied the letters, agreed that some means ought to be found to get materials for cargo planes. However, WPB officials still were reluctant to move, still seemed to think that Kaiser, though a good shipbuilder, never could build planes in the time he promised.

Finally, as they continued to stall, Kaiser sent Batt a telegram saying that he was paying experts $1,000 a day out of his own pocket to study materials and

Deadly Venoms Used To Alleviate Pains

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE DAY ABOUT 15 years ago a New York doctor named Adolphe Monealessor was traveling in Cuba and he somehow met and got to talking with a leper who had a very painful form of neuralgia until he was stung by a semi-poisonous tropical spider. Then his pain left him.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Dr. Monealessor got to thinking, and studying and he found that the venom of most poisonous "venoms" has an element in it which paralyzes the peripheral nerves—it is called the "neurotoxin." He took the idea to Dr. Calmette, of Paris, who, after experiments, selected cobra venom and was able to isolate the neurotoxic element in practically pure form, and on using it on patients with painful afflictions, he found that it stopped the pain in a large number of cases.

Used for Arthritis

Now cobra venom is procurable at your corner drug store, put up in sterile ampoules ready to use. I know a woman who was miserable with arthritis for years who takes cobra venom regularly three times a week, and while it has not changed the stiffness of the joints, it has made life comfortable and bearable for her.

It may take a good deal of courage on the part of your doctor to tell you he intends to shoot cobra venom into you and it may startle and frighten you at first. But as a matter of experience, there are few disagreeable reactions.

In most cases it produces no symptoms whatever except that in a few days your pain gets better. And it has great advantages over other pain killers such as aspirin and morphine, which sometimes have to be used but which require larger and larger doses to be effective and cause disagreeable side effects, such as constipation and nausea. Cobra venom can be used in any case of prolonged, intractable pain.

Use of Bee Venom

Another accidental observation led to the employment of another venom—bee venom. Some doctor with one of those minds that keeps relating up unrelated things found that bee keepers never got arthritis; and they were always being stung by bees. So he put these together and the result is we have the bee venom treatment for arthritis. Again, it is only a pain killer—it does not change the bony deposits in the joints. But relief from pain is about the most important thing the arthritis patient craves.

You can also get bee venom at the corner drug store. The dosage is ten bee stings. I don't know how big the bees are that make up the ten stings, nor how much venom they throw in per sting. But there you are.

The problem of the patient with severe regular pain is one which troubles physicians constantly. No one likes to prescribe the sovereign pain killer, morphine, except for a single or at most three or four doses. Aspirin helps some cases if given in large quantities.

I have a friend who last year had a pain around one rib that nearly drove him crazy all summer and no cause for it could ever be found. Bee venom finally fixed him up.

There are other methods of treating pain if cobra and bee venom fail—one is the use of vitamin B, and liver extract in the vein, another the exposure of the region of the spinal ganglia to X-ray.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. D.—A person 31 years old had a very good head of hair, but it is falling out in patches all over. A hairdresser said the trouble is internal, lacking some vitamin or other.

Answer: The description sounds like the disease called alopecia areata. It is not due to lack of vitamins. It can be cured. Go to a doctor who practices dermatology.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet costs for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband dies. Her only friend in the small town of South Wintridge, where she lives, is DR. TONY BRADSHAW, a young physician. Owner of the town's only big business is TOM KILCRAN, whose daughter, PAMELA, and wife, CLAIRE, are haughty, cold and selfish.

YESTERDAY: Barbara advertises in the Clarion for a roomer.

CHAPTER NINE

THE AD for a roomer had been running for ten days when Barbara was aroused at midnight by the heavy pounding of the knocker on her front door, and went downstairs to find a stout, gruff-voiced woman on her doorstep and Tom Shandy's taxicab wheezing at the curb.

"You the lady that's got a room to rent?" And when Barbara nodded, "Bring up the bag, son."

Barbara said, "Wouldn't you like to see the room first?"

Piercing dark eyes in a kindly, round face encompassed the girl and as much of the house as she could see in a single appraising glance. "I know it'll do. My name's Calder. Nurse Calder. I just got back from a case to find my last place sold out, lock, stock and barrel. Shandy, here, told me you had rooms to rent."

"Please come in. I hope you'll like it. The rent isn't very high and . . ."

"Just show me where it is. We'll talk details tomorrow."

Barbara led the way to the big front bedroom and lighted the lamps with rosy shades. It was cold in the room but the gay chintzes, the bright blue silk puff folded across the big four-poster bed, the cheery flowers and the sparkling cleanliness gave the room an air of welcome and comfort.

"I hope you'll like it."

"I'd be a fool if I didn't," Nurse Calder retorted. "I'll give you $10 a week for room and board and $4 a week to keep the room for me when I'm away on cases. Come from this town, but I work in Boston mostly. Like to have a place to come back to."

Ten dollars a week was a monumental sum to Barbara Wister at that point. "I'm glad you've come," she said at the door.

Nurse Calder gave her a long, searching look. "Reckon you are," she said. "You been sick?"

"No, I've been under rather a strain. I lost my husband a fortnight ago and . . ."

"Too bad. . . . Don't get up to get my breakfast in the morning."

"But I will! Good night, Miss Calder."

"If that girl doesn't head in, I'll have a patient instead of a landlady on my hands," the nurse grumbled to the closed door, but her eyes, so at odds with her bluff manner, were sympathetic because she knew the difference between strain and desperation and there was desperation in Barbara Wister's face.

Barbara slept sweetly and dreamlessly for the first time in more than two weeks and when she awoke the sun was high in the heavens and the church bells were ringing for the 11 o'clock service.

Eleven o'clock! And with an answer to a prayer, waiting for breakfast, she had overslept. She washed and hurried into her clothes, aware of the aroma of coffee.

Miss Calder was sitting at the kitchen table with the remains of her breakfast pushed away from her and the newspaper propped against the toaster. "Good morning! Well, you look as if you had a good sleep"—and then putting down Barbara's apologies with a gesture—"I heard you dressing and put some breakfast in the oven for you. The boy's had his breakfast. I dressed him and put him out in the yard to play."

"Really, Miss Calder, I feel dreadfully . . ."

"You'll feel all right after you've had a good rest. My brother lives over Medbury way and he's got a houseful of youngsters about the age of your little fellow. I'm going over there today and I'd like to take the boy if you'll let me. We'd be back by supper time."

"That would be wonderful for me . . . and for him."

"Take yourself a good rest, Mrs. Wister."

"Rest? I've had nothing but rest all my useless life. What I want is work. I've been in and out of every shop and every office in this whole town and there doesn't seem to be a single thing I can do. It does seem as if there ought to be some way that I could be a useful citizen in a town of 7,000, doesn't it?"

"What about office work? Anybody can do that."

Barbara sighed. "Anybody that can answer to experience in stenography, typing or filing. I can't even do that. I'm disgusted with myself."

"Shucks, filing isn't anything more than putting things where they belong and keeping a record of where you've put 'em."

She was reading at dusk when she thought of what the nurse said. She'd put things where they belonged and kept a record. She'd once cataloged the Wister books. Her eyes swept the ceiling-high shelves that contained more than a thousand volumes, many of them still in their bright paper dust covers. She knew every one and where it had come from and what it contained; the books that had been sent to Mark to review; the books Stan Kitchener, the noted reviewer, had sent to them when he went to Spain, writing prophetically, "I may not come back. In any event, I want you to have them."

And there were the books that arrived regularly from Drew Fothergill, who had been their best man and was president of the publishing firm of Fothergill and Lane.

Biographies, mysteries, current novels, historical and adventure books were there on her shelves, the friends with whom she had spent the lonely hours of her marriage. They were salable, she knew, but she couldn't sell them. That was different from lending them. Thinking of that, she remembered that she meant to take a fresh lot of them to Ellen Cassidy and rose to select them.

Cassidy!

His name floated into the foreground of her mind and stood there in clear letters as if urging her to summon some evasive thought that lay in her unconscious mind. It was a clear, urgent message and she closed her eyes to complete it. Her rows and rows of books blended into the insistent demand knocking there at the door of her mind.

Then, swiftly, unbidden, another picture came before her: the empty plumbing shop that stood on Main street between the flower shop and the bank, the shop that Cassidy couldn't rent.

"Ellen says she's read everything at the public library and they've nothing to compare with your books."

The door opened then, and to that underlayer of her mind Barbara saw it all!

Her mind went around crazily in a circle of spreading light and she went to her desk and drew a sheet of paper toward her. A plan emerged under her pencil and then she put it aside and began to write figures. She worked until dusk and then put it aside to await the morning and a call upon the plumber.

At 9 o'clock, she had been talking half an hour without stopping when Cassidy interrupted her.

"As I see it," he said, regarding her doubtfully over the top of his spectacles, "You've got an idea whereby I can make double money if I clean up the old shop, put a partition through it, making it two stories, and paint it."

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today you have many talents. You are capable and dependable, but are too retiring and modest. Strive to be more forceful; cultivate self-confidence. A sudden romance or new friendship is predicted for you in the next year. Employers will be helpful, but you should exercise vigilance in all business matters, thus avoiding quarrels and disputes. A child born on this date will be generous, sympathetic, idealistic, very clever and intuitive, but nevertheless, sarcastic and passionate when aroused. This child will be fortunate in love when grown.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, August 17

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of successful and pleasant dealings with superiors, employers and those in important places or authority. Those in large corporations, secret or fraternal bodies may be disposed to entertain propositions of an intriguing, strategic or secret nature. Those whose birthday it is may enjoy happy and profitable dealings with superiors, employers and those in high authority. They should also make successful contracts with large corporations, political bodies or fraternal groups if managed with tact, strategy, shrewdness or tact agreements. But these should be handled with a view to the clearly apparent possibilities of intrigue or subtle twists of meaning.

A child born on this day should have much stability of character, and should find favor with his employers, superiors or elders.

BOY, 15, HELD FOR ROBBERY OF CITY STORE

Youth Confesses Robbery, Says Cash Provided Him A Good Time

RADIO PROVES UNDOING

Sale Of Instrument Places Police On Trail And Crime Is Confessed

A 15-year-old East Main street boy is held in Pickaway county jail awaiting hearing before Juvenile Judge Lemuel B. Weldon on a charge of burglary and larceny of the Harpster and Yost hardware store last Monday night. The youth is Bernard Lockard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Lockard, 122 1/2 East Main street.

Police Chief W. F. McCrady reported Monday that the Lockard youth had signed a typewritten confession, his signature being witnessed by McCrady, Patrolman Elmer Merriam and James Yost, proprietor of the hardware store.

The youth said he obtained about $10 and a portable radio, efforts to sell the latter leading to his arrest and subsequent confession.

Hides In Store

Chief McCrady said that young Lockard had hidden in a lavatory of the hardware store Monday just before the store was closed for the day. He raised the lavatory window, put a can of disinfectant and a can of cleanser, which had been on the window sill, on the floor to provide the appearance of an outside robbery, McCrady said the youth told him.

The burglary happened between 6:30 and 9:45 p. m., the confession said, the youth not being definite concerning the exact hour. He left the store by removing an iron bar which braces the rear entrance.

Young Lockard had been seen in the store Monday afternoon, so he was picked up by McCrady and questioned concerning his burglary, but was released without charge. After signing his confession, which was obtained Saturday night, the youth told Chief McCrady that he had had the stolen money in his pocket when he was taken to police headquarters Tuesday for questioning.

Disposes of Cash

The chief was preparing to take his fingerprints when he told the boy to walk into the hall to wash his hands. Young Lockard was quoted by the chief as saying that he walked to a window beside the wash bowl and tossed the money, which was all in silver, into the arcaire between City Hall and the Clifton garage building. After release he walked to the side of the building and picked up the loot.

Chief McCrady gave Patrolman Merriam credit for 'breaking' the burglary, declaring that Merriam had found where the youth had tried to sell the radio and finally where he had made a sale. Jack Wise, who helps operate his father's auto parts business on the West Main street extension, paid the youth $10 for the radio. Lockard had appeared at the Spur filling station, West Main street, and had offered to sell the radio there, but couldn't find a buyer.

Spur station employees and Wise gave Patrolman Merriam information which led to Lockard's arrest. The youth finally confessed after being faced to face with the men to whom he had tried to sell and had sold the stolen radio. This is believed to be the only article stolen from the store except for the money, said by Mr. Yost to be $9.90.

The Lockard youth told McCrady that he had bought two devices for his bicycle which cost him $5.60 and that he had "had a lot of fun spending money for different things."

He was lodged in county jail on orders of Judge Weldon.

McCrady said that the boy had denied any part in an earlier attempt to break the safe of the Grand theatre. This burglary attempt remains unsolved.

VACANT HOUSE BURNS ON FARM OF FRED COOK

Vacant dwelling on the farm of Fred Cook, Walnut township, was destroyed by flames early Sunday, the fire believed to have been started by transients who had kindled a blaze on the wood floor of the building. The dwelling had stood idle for several years and had been a gathering place for 'knights of the road.'

Cook told firemen that he had planned to raze it for salvage. Circleville rural truck went to the scene, the call being received after a passing motorist informed Patrolman Alva Shasteen of the flames.

The call came at 7:10 a. m., 10 minutes after Chief Robert Wolf returned to duty after a two week vacation.

OCTOBER 3 SET AS FREE DATE ON WHEAT FLY

Pickaway county wheat farmers were urged Monday by agriculture authorities to plant their wheat after October 3 in an effort to combat the Hessian fly menace which became increasingly damaging this year.

F. K. Blair, Pickaway county extension agent, said that October 3 has been designated as the county's "fly free" date. This is two days later than last year.

Blair pointed out that the percentage of straw damaged by the Hessian fly this year is greater than in recent years. More than 41 percent of straw in the county was infested, this figure being much higher than the 18.2 percent of infestation observed a year ago. In 1940's harvest the total of infestation was only .6 percent.

The average state infestation in 1940 was 4.2 percent, in 1941 it was 12.1 percent and in 1942, 25.7 percent, showing that the Hessian fly was much more prevalent in Pickaway county during the year than in most other Ohio counties.

The fall brood of Hessian fly does not infest the late sowed wheat, but the spring brood attacks all wheat regardless of when sown.

The increasing popularity of the combined harvester and thresher seems to be partly responsible, farm experts say, for the problem. Grain shattered in the harvesting operation becomes beaten into the soil and sprouts with fall rains. The young wheat receives the eggs of the fall brood of fly. From this plant emerges the spring brood to infest the late sowed crop.

Field surveys made in 1941 revealed the heaviest fly infestations in Pickaway, Butler, Warren, Miami, Darke and Greene counties. Several western Ohio counties had fly larvae in 20 percent or more of the wheat stalks. In Wood, Wyandot and Preble counties control measures had greatly reduced fly infestation.

FOUR COUNTY MEN LEAVE FOR ARMY TRAINING

Four Pickaway countians accepted two weeks ago at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, for Army training left Circleville Monday after enjoying 14-day furloughs. They were Ellsworth Trego, Commercial Point; Herbert Hill, Circleville; Frederick Volz Jr., New Holland, and William C. Sanders, Orient RFD.

These four went to Fort Hayes in July with Pickaway county's largest contingent to date, but were taken on to Fort Benjamin Harrison for additional examination. They were approved several days after the main group of the inductee list, so they were permitted to remain home longer. Sixty-one men left last week for the training center.

Alex S. Watt, son of the Rev. Richard Watt, East High street, has been promoted from captain to major in the U. S. Army Engineering Corps. He is stationed in Cincinnati at the present time.

Private Ross Hamilton, in Air Force training, has been transferred from Syracuse, N. Y., to Mitchell field, Long Island. Mrs. Hamilton who has been visiting her husband in Syracuse has returned to her home in Jackson township.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Legg, Circleville route 4, have received word from their son, Private Henry D. Legg, saying that he has arrived safely in Canada. He left Circleville in April and has been in training for Army service at Camp Claiborne, La.

POLITICAL SIGNS TO BE BANNED ON HIGHWAYS

Candidates for office in Pickaway county, the district and the state will soon be informed by Hal G. Sours, Ohio director of highways, that no political signs may be erected along highway right-of-way limits for the duration of the campaign.

Sours points out that in the primaries there seemed to be an unusual number of signs nailed on trees along the state's roads. This practice will be stopped, he hinted.

"No matter how anxious a candidate may be to receive election he does not do himself much good by using trees for sign posts," Sours said, "since many persons resent the practice and will likely vote for the candidate's opponent."

CITY WAR CHEST CAMPAIGN TO BE LAST FOR YEAR

Other Fund Drives Are To Be Prohibited, Declare Local Officials

BREHMER HEADS TEAMS

Florist Will Direct Efforts Of Solicitation—Assistants Are Selected

Citizens of Circleville and Pickaway county were informed Monday by the Pickaway County Community Chest organization that its solicitation, which is scheduled to open September 17, will be the only one made during the next 12 months for agencies devoted to public purposes.

Trustees of the campaign voted unanimously to "proceed with the Pickaway County Community Chest to cover any and all existing agencies for which public solicitations are made or which may arise out of the emergency for a minimum of the next 12 month period."

This action was taken to allay fears some persons may have that a Community Fund campaign will be followed by other fund seeking drives. Frank Fischer, superintendent of Circleville schools and chairman of the Community Fund, declared: "Success of our campaign means that solicitations for such purposes during the next year will not be necessary. Our tentative budget includes money for each organization which operates for public purposes in our community. No other organization will need to plan its own campaign here, since we will be prepared to provide all with sufficient money to carry on their work."

Robert L. Brehmer, North Court street was appointed chairman of the important committee embracing solicitation from civic, fraternal and religious organizations in Circleville. His aides will be Miss Margaret Rooney and Dwight Steele, this committee of three to set up the organization it requires for functioning.

Publicity committee, which will prepare newspaper releases concerning the campaign and establish a speakers' bureau, will be headed by Mr. Fischer, with its additional members including Mrs. A. Hulse Hays, Harold J. Bowers, Brie Connell, Miss Eleanor Ryan and Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker.

Community Fund is seeking $49,680 for the next year's work. Every person in Pickaway county and Circleville will be asked for assistance.

Trustees, 14 of whom attended the Sunday afternoon session in Farm Bureau offices, will meet

LOCAL TEACHER STUDIES PLANES AT OHIO STATE

Fred Watts, Circleville high school faculty member, is one of 60 Ohio high school instructors hard at work at Ohio State university preparing for the course in pre-flight aviation they will teach their own students this fall.

Most of the teachers are only a "jump"—three weeks to be exact—ahead of their students, because few have had previous experience of the kind. But they are ready to do some extra work to offer the new course requested by the federal government and the state department of education as a part of the war program.

While making an intensive study of such subjects as aerodynamics, navigation, airplane engines, communications and the vocational and social implications of aviation the teachers at the same time are making models and apparatus to use in their classes. The aeronautics training will be given in Circleville high school to boys and girls of the upper two classes with training in sciences and mathematics if a sufficient number enrolls for the course. A full unit of credit will be given by the board of education.

JULIUS S. VAN HEYDE, 76, DIES OF HEART AILMENT

Heart disease caused death Sunday at his home in Columbus of Julius Simon (Dude) Van Heyde, 76, a native of Circleville but a resident of Columbus for the last 60 years. Mr. Van Heyde lived at 1057 Franklin avenue.

He had worked all day Saturday, but was stricken fatally early in the morning. In his barber shop on East Spring street he had served many state and national figures including President McKinley and many of Ohio's governors.

Survivors include his widow, Teresa; four sons, Joseph, George, Leo and Otto, two brothers and a sister. The son, George, is a former Ohio State university athlete and coach at St. Mary's high school, Columbus. He is now in Army service at Fort Knox, Ky.

He was a charter member of the Columbus Eagles' lodge and was affiliated with Elks, Knights of Columbus and Buckeye Court, Catholic order of Foresters.

Funeral will be Wednesday at 9 a. m. in St. Patrick's Catholic church.

again next Sunday at 1:30 p. m. to work out additional committees and other details which will come up during the week. The big solicitation committee will be called for the following Monday night in the courthouse to receive instructions concerning their duties.

Chief talking point in the campaign, trustees believe, is the fact that the Community Chest solicitation and gift will be the only one necessary this year in the district.

STATE DEFENSE COUNCIL OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

Ohio State Council of Defense was observing its first anniversary Monday as Acting Director Ralph H. Stone announced that civilian and industrial protection institutes would be held soon in counties recognized as potential target areas.

Calling on the Circleville Defense Council to emphasize the protection side of the defense program, Stone said there is a "definite need for educating the public as to the importance of civilian defense."

He said that representatives of the State Defense Council would conduct the institutes, designed to educate men and women in methods of protecting the lives of their neighbors should enemy airplanes strike.

As the State Defense Council rounded out its first year of operation, Stone recalled that 12 months ago "a large segment of the public did not realize the seriousness of the war abroad and how close it was coming to home."

The situation today, however, "is quite different," he declared. "Today finds Ohioans on the alert on foreign and home fronts, united in one great effort and imbued with but one thought which transcends all others—that of winning the war."

Today—one year after its birth—the Ohio State Council of Defense has recommended 879 local defense councils for certification by Gov. John W. Bricker. More than 125,000 volunteers have been trained for emergency service, an air raid communications system has been established, and a number of programs developed to make the home front secure.

ALLEN FUNERAL

Funeral services for Bert Allen, 53, of Brice, who was killed early Saturday on Route 104 near the Franklin county line, were held Monday at 2 p. m. with burial at Canal Winchester. Mr. Allen, employed in the state highway department engineer's office, was fatally injured when his automobile struck a culvert.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. John E. Zarbaugh, and two brothers, Theodore and Charles Allen.

Accidents to trains at highway-railroad grade crossings in the past six years have resulted in 101 railroad employees losing their lives.

A.A.A. OFFICIALS CALLED TO MEET IN CHILLICOTHE

AAA officials, including chairmen, fieldwomen and district fieldmen, have been called to attend an important meeting August 28 in Chillicothe. Elmer F. Other meetings are being held throughout the state in the latter part of the month, but the Chillicothe session being nearest to Circleville will attract the local group.

Rodgers-Avis Nuptials In Beautiful Setting

Event Followed
By Reception At Pickaway Arms

Peach gladioli, ferns and burning tapers in seven and five-branch candelabra formed a lovely setting for the twilight wedding Sunday of Miss Dorothy Foster Avis and Mr. Ralph A. Rodgers, which took place at 7:30 p. m. in the Methodist church. Dr. William T. Blume, a retired Methodist minister of Lancaster, officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, William A. Avis, of South Scioto street, the bride was gown-d in white sheer fashioned with a long sweeping train. Inserts of lace bands formed panels from neckline to the edge of the skirt and trimmed the closely fitted bodice. Soft shirring, a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves, slightly puffed at the shoulders and finished with points at the wrists, were details of the bodice. Miss Avis carried a formal bouquet of white gladioli and feverfew and wore two strands of pearls, the bridegroom's gift. Her English half-veil fell from a woven cap of net fashioned with a halo of orange blossoms.

Miss Louise Rodgers of Lancaster, sister of the bridegroom and maid of honor, Miss Wahnta Barnhart, Montclair avenue, and Miss June West, Williamsport, bridesmaids, were dressed in identical outfits with the exception of color. Miss Rodgers' gown of blue and the bridesmaids' of pink were lovely models of net and taffeta, fashioned floor length. The tightly fitted bodices were finished with points at the neckline and had pockets of shirred net and short puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirts were gathered to the bodices. Each carried a colonial bouquet of rose asters and baby chrysanthemums.

A splendid program of nuptial music preceded the ceremony. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter singing, "O Promise Me," "All For You," "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." Mr. Hunter Chambers playing her accompaniments. Mr. Chambers' selections were "Minuet" from L'Arlesienne, Suite No. II, "Until," "I Never Knew" and "My Happy Day," in addition to the wedding marches.

Mr. Don Henry and Mr. Frank Barnhill Jr. of Circleville were ushers.

Mr. Lester P. Kennedy of Cincinnati served as best man for Mr. Rodgers.

Mr. and Mrs. Avis were hosts at a reception at the Pickaway Arms immediately after the service.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom and was lighted with many tapers.

Mr. Rodgers and his bride left for a week's trip during the evening, their destination not being disclosed. The new Mrs. Rodgers wore a bright red tailored suit with black accessories for traveling and had a corsage of white pompons pinned at her shoulder.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rodgers of Lancaster, is a graduate of Lancaster high school and Bliss Business college, Columbus. He is employed by the War Department in the office of the Division Engineer, Ohio River division, at Cincinnati. They will live at 2803 Madison road, Cincinnati.

Ridge School Reunion

More than 300 attended the eleventh annual Ridge School reunion Saturday at the Ray Peters' grove, near East Ringgold. Many former pupils and teachers were included in group. Members of the Barr family held their reunion dinner at the affair.

A bountiful dinner served at noon was followed by an excellent program. "The Prayer Perfect", repeated in unison, was followed by group singing of "God Bless America" and remarks by C. O. Barr, president of the Ridge School association.

Readings were presented by Mrs. Flora Hutchins Forster, whose selection was "Country School House"; a reading of 50 years ago, Mrs. Lettie Barr Kiger; reading of 10 years ago, Mrs. Nora Delong; reading by a former teacher, Emanuel Snyder of Ashville, who is now 82 years old; concert reading, Mrs. Grace Marburger Lehman; remarks, Edward Stout, William Swick, Harold Bowers, E. A. Brown, the Rev. Harry W. Barr, Vernon Riegel and Ben Finkle. Roll was called by Frank Barr and the community singing was led by Professor Ellis Snyder of Capital University, Columbus. Several fine band selections were interspersed during the enjoyable program.

Thomas-Van Buskirk Reunion

The forty-first annual reunion of the Thomas-Van Buskirk families was held Sunday at the Neff-Anderson Spring park, north of Mt. Sterling, with about 50 present.

Present from Circleville were Mrs. G. H. Colville, Miss Clara Southward, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Colville, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomas and sons, Everett and David, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Downing and daughters, Joan, Elizabeth and Ann and Mrs. L. F. Thomas; others were present from New Holland, Mt. Sterling, London, Grove City, Columbus and Westerville, Ohio, and Webb City, Mo.

Officers elected for the coming year included C. S. Quelen of Columbus, president; W. A. Downing, Wayne township, vice president; Miss Elizabeth Downing, Wayne township, recording secretary; Miss Leah Binns, New Holland, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. F. E. Ginder, Columbus, treasurer.

Basket Dinner

A basket dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Bower of Pickaway township in honor of Mrs. Bower's brother, Donald Goodman, who has enlisted in the Navy and left Monday to enter training.

A bountiful dinner was served at noon to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Creager, Amanda; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fausnaugh, Charles Cook, Mr. and Mrs. George Justus and children, Leah Jean and John, Henry Fausnaugh and children, Erma, Bud and Buster, of Stoutsville; Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Stephens and Mr. and Mrs. Noble Barr of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hinton and son, Robert; and Mrs. Ada Fisher of Columbus; Miss Minnie Bower of Dayton; John Fausnaugh and Dale Bower and Donald Goodman, the guest of honor.

Sunday Dinner Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Van Vleet of West High street entertained Sunday at their home, their dinner guests including Mr. and Mrs. William Theobald and Mrs. William Purcell of Washington C. H.; Dr. and Mrs. D. V. Kerns and daughter, Donna Jean, and Mrs. H. F. Hampshire.

Wayne Council No. 1

Wayne Advisory Council No. 1 will meet August 23 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James George of Wayne township, the meeting having been postponed one week.

Miss Louise Rodgers of Lancaster, sister of the bridegroom and maid of honor, Miss Wahnta Barnhart, Montclair avenue, and Miss June West, Williamsport, bridesmaids, were dressed in identical outfits with the exception of color. Miss Rodgers' gown of blue and the bridesmaids' of pink were lovely models of net and taffeta, fashioned floor length. The tightly fitted bodices were finished with points at the neckline and had pockets of shirred net and short puffed sleeves. The bouffant skirts were gathered to the bodices. Each carried a colonial bouquet of rose asters and baby chrysanthemums.

A bountiful dinner served at noon was followed by an excellent program. "The Prayer Perfect", repeated in unison, was followed by group singing of "God Bless America" and remarks by C. O. Barr, president of the Ridge School association.

150 County Grangers Attend Pomona Session

Mrs. Warner Wins
First In Bread
Contest

One hundred and fifty grangers of the county attended the splendid meeting of Pomona grange Saturday at Saltcreek Valley school, the subordinate grange of that community serving as host for the day. Mrs. C. E. Dick of Star grange and Mrs. Jeannette Anderson of Saltcreek Valley grange were obligated in the fifth degree during the Pomona session.

Finals in the county bread contest found Mrs. Lawrence Warner of Washington grange taking first prize; Mrs. Gladys Hedges, Saltcreek Valley, second; Mrs. Charles Hosler, Star grange, third, and Mrs. Paul Peters, Scioto Valley, fourth prize. Mrs. Gerald Patrick of Kingston, a former teacher of home economics, served as judge. There were seven entries, one for each grange.

The cookie sale netted a fine sum for the 1942 county grange project, which is to be a donation to Berger hospital.

During the morning session excellent reports of the year's work of the subordinate granges were received by Homer Reber, Pomona master.

Saltcreek Valley grange served a delightful dinner in the cafeteria at noon, lovely Summer flowers decorating the tables where the guests were served. Masses of Summer flowers in colorful arrangements made the auditorium an attractive setting for the quarterly meeting.

Nebraska grange orchestra opened the afternoon program with several selections; Miss Doris Hill, Scioto grange, played two piano solos, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "Light a Candle in the Chapel"; monologue, "As Some Women Thinketh," Mrs. Austin Wilson, Logan Elm grange; violin solo, "Alp-Maid's Dream," Miss Emma Bowsher, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Dwight Rector, both members of Saltcreek Valley grange; vocal duets, "Whispering Hope" and "One Fleeting Hour," Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fisher, with piano accompaniments by Mrs. Herman Berger, Scioto Valley grange; playlet, "And Truth Goes Marching On," Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Warner, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bolder, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leist and daughter, Carol Ann, Mrs. G. M. Newton, Miss Dorothy Glick and Miss Ethyl May, Washington grange.

The fine meeting closed with group singing of three patriotic songs.

Columbus Guests

Mrs. Robert T. Liston and daughters, Helen and Bernice, of Columbus pike spent Friday in Columbus as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Conger and daughter, Mrs. Herbert C. Hershey Jr. Mrs. Hershey, the former Marion Conger, who has been a frequent visitor in Circleville, is the guest of her parents while her husband, Captain Hershey, is attending Field Artillery school in Fort Sill, Okla. When Mrs. Hershey rejoins her husband in the near future, they will go to Waco, Texas, where Captain Hershey will be stationed indefinitely.

Rader Reunion

Forty members of the Rader family attended the ninth annual reunion Sunday at Mound City park, on Route 104, near Chillicothe. A delightful dinner was served at noon in the shelter house.

Men and boys of the family party participated in a baseball game and other sports during the pleasant afternoon.

The 1942 officers were reelected for the coming year, the slate including Harry Reiterman, president; Mrs. Thomas Wright, vice president, and Mrs. J. C. Rader, secretary-treasurer.

BIG PUSH?

IF A RECENT broadcast in Moscow is taken seriously, there may yet be something doing this year—something big. It was announced the other day that Germany would be faced by 15,000,000 men, 85,000 tanks, and 100,000 guns and 50,000 airplanes. Something could be done with an outfit like that. An onslaught of one-third as much power would stop Hitler's progress toward the Caucasus and turn him back to save his western front.

At the same time, however, Moscow radio urged Britain and America to hurry with the front they have promised. Moscow is doubtless right when it says that "now is not the time to wait." But there must be still more waiting, because the western Allies are not yet ready, and there is no clear intimation of when they will be.

The offensive action in the Pacific Islands is a good start.

HOTELS

FOUR huge Atlantic City hotels, the Claridge, the Ritz-Carlton, the Traymore, and the Chalfonte-Haddon, said to be the world's largest seaside resort hotel, have been taken over by the government. This follows on the heels of the similar appropriation of two large Chicago hotels.

This probably eases the minds of the managers. Travel for pleasure is out for the duration, and these great plants should not stand idle if they can help to carry on the war. Walls have ears, according to the old saying. If they should develop voices also, these famous inns would have some interesting tales to tell about the things likely to take place within their walls.

AIR ARGOSIES

IT HAS been proved that we can put armies into the air. Now it remains to be demonstrated that we can put freight trains there. It can be done, no doubt, on a small scale, but what of the large scale? Something comparable to Tennyson's "argosies of magic sails dropping down with costly bales," but far bigger and heavier.

We shall soon find out, thanks to the adventurous spirit of the War Production Board at Washington. It has approved the building of 500 seventy-ton flying boats as cargo carriers, and the experimental construction of 200-ton air freighters, dwarfing Glenn Martin's experiment. And there is Henry J. Kaiser, the West Coast shipbuilder. He will try anything once in the realm of transport by land, water or air, and has an almost miraculous record of success.

It should be a wonderful world after this war, if the nations don't exhaust themselves meanwhile to the point of losing their enterprise.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON.—Director Elmer Davis' Office of War Information is developing an intensity of informativeness that it is beginning to worry some folk high in the Washington administration.

There are a couple of theories concerning the proper function of an organization like OWI. One is that, as in information bureau, its business is to suppress information— to censor, in short.

The other is that its essential duty is to spread good cheer all over the land—to convince the public that everything is being elegantly managed; that all it needs to do is to stand pat behind the managers and presently they will report the complete success of perfectly handled jobs.

Davis' system does not fit either of these two prescriptions. His thesis is that his stunt is to dish out all the information there is—good news and bad news alike. This would be satisfactory to advocates of glad tidings exclusively if all the information he had to disseminate were of that pleasing type, but it is not as yet; it is mostly pretty grim.

OWI's recent "Statement on the War's Status" was the first thoroughgoing sample.

"We Could Lose War"
Its motto was, "We could lose this war."

Our inadequate production of fighting material is our great danger, according to Elmer, and he holds civilianism responsible for it.

Naturally, he does, because civilians are the individuals who turn out the goods; our military guys shoot them off and they cannot shoot off anything except what civilians deliver to them.

Now, if civilianism were called on to exert itself only a little bit harder, this diagnosis of Elmer's might not come to so much of a jolt.

This, though, is no "little bit," Elmer warns us. "As a nation," he says, "we're not yet ankle-deep in the war." Such being the case, what's it going to be like when we are in it up to our waist? And that isn't the worst!

While the war is raging we will have all the enjoyment of its jazz and pep.

But what about when it is over,

CONQUERING BIG OBSTACLES

WASHINGTON — Real fact about the plans of dynamic Henry F. Kaiser, the miracle shipbuilder, is that at first he was given the green light on building cargo planes — with a great big IF attached.

That IF was — provided he could find the critical materials to build his flying freighters.

In other words, the brass hats gave their O. K. with their tongues in their cheeks. For they knew that with plants closing down all over the country for lack of steel and other materials, Kaiser, no matter what kind of a miracle man, would not have much chance.

They did not realize, however, whom they were up against. Kaiser immediately hired the best minerals expert he could find, Herbert G. Moulton, and began digging into the metals bottleneck. One of these is chrome, used for hardening steel, especially in such vital parts of an airplane as the propeller collar.

And Kaiser found that a ferro-silica furnace he was building on the West Coast, by changing its lining, could refine all the chrome he needed.

He also dug up figures showing that between the United States, Canada and Great Britain, the United Nations produce 90 percent of the world's nickel or about 165,000 tons annually, while Germany and the Axis produce only about 13,000 tons.

So Kaiser, determined to carry out his plan of producing giant cargo planes, took two letters to William Batt, head of WPB's Materials Division. One letter showed how he planned to get chrome. The other letter pointed out that if Germany could scrape along on 13,000 tons of nickel a year, the United States should be able to find enough nickel out of 165,000 tons to make cargo planes.

TRANSPORTATION ALL-IMPORTANT

"It's a question of putting first things first," Kaiser told Batt and other WPB officials. "I figure that when we're fighting 8,000 miles away, the very first thing we need is communications, in other words radio, to give orders to our troops."

"And the second thing we need, I figure, is to get supplies to them. Getting the supplies there is more important than anything except communications, first because they can't fight without supplies, second because there is no use making tanks and machine guns and then letting them rust in the United States for lack of transportation."

"So if you want to get the stuff over to the fighting front, you ought to be able to spare a little nickel for me to make engines for cargo planes."

Mr. Batt studied the letters, agreed that some means ought to be found to get materials for cargo planes. However, WPB officials still were reluctant to move, still seemed to think that Kaiser, though a good shipbuilder, never could build planes in the time he promised.

Finally, as they continued to stall, Kaiser sent Batt a telegram saying that he was paying experts $1,000 a day out of his own pocket to study materials and

DIET AND HEALTH

Deadly Venoms Used To Alleviate Pains

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ONE DAY ABOUT 15 years ago a New York doctor named Adolphe Monaelesser was traveling in Cuba and he somehow met and got to talking with a leper who had a very painful form of neuralgia until he was stung by a semi-poisonous tropical spider. Then his pain left him.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Dr. Monaelesser got to thinking, and studying and he found that the venom of most poisonous "vampires" has an element in it which paralyzes the peripheral nerves; it is called the "neurotoxin." He took the idea to Dr. Calmette, of Paris, who, after experiments, selected cobra venom and was able to isolate the neurotoxic element in practically pure form, and on using it on patients with painful affections, he found that it stopped the pain in a large number of cases.

Used for Arthritis
Now cobra venom is procurable at your corner drug store, put up in sterile ampoules ready to use. I know a woman who was miserable with arthritis for years who takes cobra venom regularly three times a week, and while it has not changed the stiffness of the joints, it has made life comfortable and bearable for her.

It may take a good deal of courage on the part of your doctor to tell you he intends to shoot cobra venom into you and it may startle and frighten you at first. But as a matter of experience, there are few disagreeable reactions.

In most cases it produces no symptoms whatever except that in a few days your pain gets better. And it has great advantages over other pain killers such as aspirin and morphine, which sometimes have to be used but which require larger and larger doses to be effective and cause disagreeable side effects, such as constipation and nausea. Cobra venom can be used in any case of prolonged, intractable pain.

Use of Bee Venom
Another accidental observation led to the employment of another venom—bee venom. Some doctor with one of those minds that keeps relating unrelated things found that bee keepers never got arthritis; and they were always being stung by bees. So he put these together and the result is we have the bee venom treatment for arthritis. Again, it is only a pain killer—it does not change the bony deposits in the joints. But relief from pain is about the most important thing the arthritis patient craves.

You can also get bee venom at the corner drug store. The dosage is ten bee stings. I don't know how big the bees are that make up the ten stings, nor how much venom they throw in per sting. But there you are.

The problem of the patient with severe regular pain is one which troubles physicians constantly. No one likes to prescribe the sovereign pain killer, morphine, except for a single or at most three or four doses. Aspirin helps some cases if given in large quantities.

I have a friend who last year had a pain around one rib that nearly drove him crazy all summer and no cause for it could ever be found. Bee venom finally fixed him up.

There are other methods of treating pain if cobra and bee venom fail—one is the use of vitamin B, and liver extract in the vein, another the exposure of the region of the spinal ganglia to X-ray.

Mrs. Flora Dunlap sent a check for $500 to the board of management of the Circleville Home and Hospital and announced that a second check for the same amount would be sent within 12 months. She made the gifts in the name of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dunlap.

Mrs. Joe Wilder of East Mound street had for her guests, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Throp of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Evans and daughter, Alice, of Minneapolis.

The Union-Herald, the oldest private business enterprise in Circleville and Pickaway county, having been established August 9, 1817, was beginning another century of service. The paper had 45 editors during its career and missed publication day only once, when the office was being moved, during the one hundred years.

SYNOPSIS

BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband dies. Her only friend is the small town of South Wintridge, where she lives, is Dr. FORTY BRADSHAW, a young physician. Owner of the town's only big business is TOM KILCRAN, whose daughter, FAMELA, and wife, CLARE, are haughty, cold and selfish.

YESTERDAY: Barbara advertises in the Clarion for a roomer.

CHAPTER NINE

THE AD for a roomer had been running for ten days when Barbara was aroused at midnight by the hearty pounding of the knocker on her front door, and went downstairs to find a stout, gruff-voiced woman on her doorstep and Tom Shandy's taxicab wheezing at the curb.

"You the lady that's got a room to rent?" And when Barbara nodded, "Bring up the bag, son."

Barbara said, "Wouldn't you like to see the room first?"

Piercing dark eyes in a kindly, round face encompassed the girl and as much of the house as she could see in a single appraising glance. "I know it'll do. My name's Calder. Nurse Calder. I just got back from a case to find my last place sold out, lock, stock and barrel. Shandy, here, told me you had rooms to rent."

"Please come in. I hope you'll like it. The rent isn't very high and . . ."

"Just show me where it is. We'll talk details tomorrow."

Barbara led the way to the big front bedroom and lighted the lamps with rosy shades. It was cold in the room but the gay chintzes, the bright blue silk puff folded across the big four-poster bed, the cheery flowers and the sparkling cleanliness gave the room an air of welcome and comfort.

"I hope you'll like it," Nurse Calder retorted. "I'll give you $10 a week for room and board and $4 a week to keep the room for me when I'm away on cases. Come from this town, but I work in Boston mostly. Like to have a place to come back to."

Ten dollars a week was a monumental sum to Barbara Wister at that point. "I'm glad you've come," she said at the door.

Nurse Calder gave her a long, searching look. "Reckon you are," she said. "You been sick?"

"No, I've been under rather a strain. I lost my husband a fortnight ago and . . ."

"Too bad. . . . Don't get up to get my breakfast in the morning."

"But I will! Good night, Miss Calder."

"If that girl doesn't head in, I'll have a patient instead of a landlady on my hands," the nurse grumbled to the closed door, but her eyes, so odd with her bluff manner, were sympathetic because she knew the difference between strain and desperation and there was desperation in Barbara Wister's face.

Barbara slept sweetly and dreamlessly for the first time in more than two weeks and when she woke the sun was high in the heavens and the church bells were ringing for the 11 o'clock service.

Eleven o'clock! And with an answer to a prayer waiting for breakfast, she had overslept. She washed and hurried into her clothes, aware of the aroma of coffee.

Miss Calder was sitting at the kitchen table with the remains of her breakfast pushed away from her and the newspaper propped against the toaster. "Good morning! Well, you look as if you had a good sleep"—and then putting down Barbara's apologies with a gesture—"I heard you dressing and put some breakfast in the oven for you. The boy's had his breakfast. I dressed him and put him out in the yard to play."

"Really, Miss Calder, I feel dreadfully . . ."

"You'll feel all right after you've had a good rest. My brother lives over Medbury way and he's got a houseful of youngsters about the age of your little fellow. I'm going over there today and I'd like to take the boy if you'll let me. We'd be back by supper time."

"That would be wonderful for me . . . and for him."

"Take yourself a good rest, Mrs. Wister."

"Rest? I've had nothing but rest all my useless life. What I want is work. I've been in and out of every shop and every office in this whole town and there doesn't seem to be a single thing I can do. It does seem as if there ought to be some way that I could be a useful citizen in a town of 7,000, doesn't it?"

"What about office work? Anybody can do that."

Barbara sighed. "Anybody that can answer to experience in stenography, typing or filing. I can't even do that. I'm disgraced with myself."

"Shucks, filing isn't anything more than putting things where they belong and keeping a record of where you've put 'em."

She was reading at dusk when she thought of what the nurse said. She'd put things where they belonged and kept a record. She'd once cataloged the Wister books. Her eyes swept the ceiling-high shelves that contained more than a thousand volumes, many of them still in their bright paper dust covers. She knew every one and where it had come from and what it contained; the books that had been sent to Mark to review; the books Stan Kitchener, the noted reviewer, had sent to them when he went to Spain, writing prophetically, "I may not come back. In any event, I want you to have them."

And there were the books that arrived regularly from Drew Fothergill, who had been their best man and was president of the publishing firm of Fothergill and Lane.

Biographies, mysteries, current novels, historical and adventure books were there on her shelves, the friends with whom she had spent the lonely hours of her marriage. They were saleable, she knew, but she couldn't sell them. That was different from lending them. Thinking of that, she remembered that she meant to take a fresh lot of them to Ellen Cassidy and rose to select them.

Cassidy! His name floated into the foreground of her mind and stood there in clear letters as if urging her to summon some evasive thought that lay in her unconscious mind. It was a clear, urgent message and she closed her eyes to complete it. Her rows and rows of books blended into the insistent demand knocking there at the door of her mind.

Then swiftly, unbidden, another picture came before her: the empty plumbing shop that stood on Main street between the flower shop and the bank, the shop that Cassidy couldn't rent.

"Ellen says she's read everything at the public library and they've nothing to compare with your books."

The door opened then, and to that underlayer of her mind Barbara saw it all!

Her mind went around crazily in a circle of spreading light and she went to her desk and drew a sheet of paper toward her. A plan emerged under her pencil and then she put it aside and began to write figures. She worked until dusk and then put it aside and waited the morning and a call upon the plumber.

At 9 o'clock, she had been talking half an hour without stopping when Cassidy interrupted her.

"As I see it," he said, regarding her doubtfully over the top of his spectacles, "You've got an idea whereby I can make double money if I clean up the old shop, put a partition through it, making it two stores, and paint it."

Today's Horoscope

If your birthday is today you have many talents. You are capable and dependable, but are too retiring and modest. Strive to be more forceful; cultivate self-confidence. A sudden romance or new friendship is predicted for you in the next year. Employers will be helpful, but you should exercise vigilance in all business matters, thus avoiding quarrels and disputes. A child born on this date will be generous, sympathetic, idealistic, very clever and intuitive, but nevertheless, sarcastic and passionate when aroused. This child will be fortunate in love when grown.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, August 17
MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a day of successful and pleasant dealings with superiors, employers and those in important places or authority. Those in large corporations, secret, or fraternal bodies may be disposed to entertain propositions of an intriguing, strategic or secret nature.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy happy and profitable dealings with superiors, employers and those in high authority. They should also make successful contracts with large corporations, political bodies or fraternal groups if managed with tact, strategy, shrewdness or tact agreements. But these should be handled with a view to the clearly apparent possibilities of intrigue or subtle twists of meaning.

A child born on this day should have much stability of character, and should find favor with its employers, superiors or elders.

Revealing fact regarding the renomination of Representative Ham Fish, F. D. WATCH FOR NAZI DIVES

It escaped public notice, but the Navy has officially requested a New York court to impose a sentence of 20 years, the maximum, upon Gustav Beekman, keeper of a Brooklyn house of degradation in connection with which a certain U. S. senator was mentioned.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley stated on the Senate floor that his colleague was not present at the house, and this issue was not involved in the Navy's request for the maximum sentence. The real reason, as explained by a naval officer before the court, was much more significant.

The house of degradation had been used for the purpose of obtaining important information from American sailors frequenting the place.

It is also known that immorality of this type has been prevalent among the Nazis and was the cause of one Hitler purge. Three Nazi agents were picked up at the Brooklyn home, two of them found to be former German officers. Some American sailors frequented the place, and this may have been one source of the amazing shipping information which the Nazis have been getting in this country.

Authorities are now asking the cooperation of local communities in spotting and cleaning up dives of this type, most of which are cleverly camouflaged.

RED BIRDS KEEP GRASP ON LEAD

Sunday Split Leaves Race Unchanged; Colonels Only Double Winners

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Columbus Red Birds remained one slim game ahead of the rest of the American Association pack today as a Sabbath split with the sixth-place Minneapolis Millers failed to change the standings.

The Millers broke a 12-game losing streak by taking the opener, 5-4, over a 12-inning route, but a three-hit performance in the nightcap by Ted Wilks gave the Birds a 2-0 shutout.

Second-place Kansas City failed to profit by the Birds' split; they shared a twin-bill with seventh-place Indianapolis, dropping the first tilt, 4-2, but winning the second, 2-1.

Toledo, only a game and a half off the pace in third place, also suffered from splits, when last-place St. Paul snapped the Hens' eight-game win streak with a 6-4 victory. The Hens came back in the nightcap with a 5-4 win.

Only Louisville was able to win a twin bill, twice edging fourth-place Milwaukee, 3-2 and 2-1, to climb with 3 1/2 games of the leaders.

KINGSTON

Women's Society of the Methodist church met at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Reiterman on Wednesday afternoon with twenty-five members present. After the business session the following program was presented: readings were given by Mrs. A. D. Ellis, musical reading by Mrs. W. R. Sunderland, and vocal solos by Mrs. F. M. Snyder of Chillicothe.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Van Fossen and small daughter of Circleville, were Tuesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Adams.

Robert Siberell will return to Camp Polk, Louisiana, on Saturday after enjoying a week's furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Siberell and children and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Willis of Columbus, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Sims.

The 9th meeting of the 4-H club of Kingston was held August 10, 7:30 p. m., at the Presbyterian church. Vice president, Evelyn Orr, presided. The meeting was opened by the Pledge of Allegiance to the flag. The secretary then had roll call and minutes. As there were no objections or corrections they stood as read. Mr. Hill then suggested that the members go over their club books. After the business session Mr. Hill led the recreation. One game played was "Clap in Clap out."

The individual and team demonstration contestants were picked. Committees were appointed for the county picnic on the 19th and 20th at Chillicothe.

Mrs. F. B. Mowery suffered a relapse at her home following her operation and was returned to Granger hospital in Columbus Wednesday noon. Mrs. Mowery has been seriously ill from a kidney infection and they have put a drain in one of her kidneys.

HOGAN ADDS ANOTHER TO LENGTHY VICTORY STRING

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 17—Ben Hogan, leading money winner of golfdom, today had added another $1,000 to his bag, by copying the $5,000 Times-Union open tournament. The Hershey, Pa., golf wad had a final round 74, four over par, for a 72-hole aggregate of 278.

Craig Wood of Mamaroneck was three strokes behind the 72 for 281 and a stroke behind Wood was Harold McSpaden of Philadelphia with a 73.

Fourth prize went to Ky Laffoon, of Miami, Okla., one of seven to equal par in the final round. Laffoon carded 283. Tied for fifth with 284 were Dutch Harrison, Camp Hill, Pa.; Mike Turnesa, Elmsford; Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo., and Ted Bishop, Waltham, Mass., amateur Jimmy Demaret, Detroit and Henry Ransom, North Hills, Pa., each had a 285.

BOUT POSTPONED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—The scheduled 10-round boxing match between Jack "Buddy" Walker and Joe Louis' sparring partner, Clarence Brown of Chicago has been postponed from tomorrow evening to Tuesday, August 25, it was announced today by Matchmaker Whitney Morrett. Insufficient time in which to train was forwarded by the Columbus Negro's manager, Lee Closson, in requesting the week's reprieve.

CARDS HOPING REDS WILL AID IN FLAG DRIVE

Cincinnati Folds Up Twice, St. Louis Moving Closer To League Leading Bums

By International News Service

St. Louis squared off with Cincinnati today with high hopes that the Reds would prove as cooperative as they did yesterday when the Cardinals won both ends of a doubleheader, 10 to 5 and 6 to 3. The double victories pushed the Red Birds to within eight games of the Dodgers for the National league lead, Brooklyn having lost to Boston, 2 to 0, in seven innings of what had been scheduled as a doubleheader.

Four Cincinnati errors gave the Cardinals six unearned runs and Max Lanier his ninth victory in the first game. Rookie Johnny Beazley chalked up his 14th win in the nightcap, helping his own cause with a ringing single that started a rally in the fifth frame.

Al Javery turned the bewildered Dodgers every way but loose. The big right-hander permitted only one hit, a single by Dixie Walker in the fifth inning. Javery has allowed only one run in his last 36 innings and none in his last 19.

Kirby Higbe was the victim of the fancy play by the Braves.

Chicago took both ends of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh, 5 to 1 and 4 to 1. Bill Lee scored his 12th victory in the opener and Les Fleming allowed only two hits to win the nightcap.

Mungo Weakens

The Giants staggered to a 6 to 5 win over Philadelphia in the only game of a scheduled doubleheader permitted by the weather. Van Lingle Mungo, with a 6-run lead, was hurling no-hit ball until the fourth, when he walked five straight Phils.

Harry Feldman relieved and gained credit for the hair-line win.

In the American league, Boston made it four straight over Washington by taking both ends of a twin feature, 6 to 4 and 10 to 3. In the first game, Bill Butland held the Senators to seven scattered hits, while the Red Sox were gathering 11 off Walter Masterson during the seven innings he stayed on the mound.

Terry walked eight Nats in the nightcap, but held them to only four hits, with two of their three runs being scored on errors.

The New York Yankees had only six innings to do damage to Philadelphia but that was enough time for an 11 to 2 runaway. Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon both hit for the circuit as the Yanks blasted 14 hits off three Athletics hurlers.

Detroit took both ends of a doubleheader from Chicago, 3 to 2 in eleven innings and 7 to 3. The Tigers were trailing 1 to 0 going into the ninth inning of the first game when a double by Rudy York and Pinky Higgins' single tied the score. Two more singles won the game.

Cleveland split with St. Louis, the Indians copping the opener, in eleven innings, 3 to 2, and losing the finale, 6 to 1.

Cheap Loan

Our loan number 669881 is a busy molder in a steel mill. He has a small foundry of his own at home. With war orders piling up, he came to us for a loan to enlarge his own little foundry. Now he works at the mill by day and at home by night, doing his bit and making a good income all the way around. He says he now is in better shape than ever before, both physically and financially. When you need cash, just say the word. We're ready to make you the loan you need on the terms you like.

150 County Grangers Attend Pomona Session

Mrs. Warner Wins First In Bread Contest

One hundred and fifty grangers of the county attended the splen- did meeting of Pomona grange Saturday at Salt Creek Valley school, the subordinate grange of that community serving as host for the day. Mrs. C. E. Dick of Star grange and Mrs. Jeannette Anderson of Salt Creek Valley grange were obligated in the fifth degree during the Pomona session.

Finals in the county bread con- test found Mrs. Lawrence Warner of Washington grange taking first prize; Mrs. Gladys Hedges, Salt- creek Valley, second; Mrs. Charles Hosler, Star grange, third, and Mrs. Paul Peters, Scioto Valley, fourth prize. Mrs. Gerald Patrick of Kingston, a former teacher of home economics, served as judge. There were seven entries, one for each grange.

The cookie sale netted a fine sum for the 1942 county grange project, which is to be a donation to Berger hospital.

During the morning session ex- cellent reports of the year's work of the subordinate granges were received by Homer Reber, Po- mona master.

Salt Creek Valley grange served a delightful dinner in the cafeter- ia at noon, lovely Summer flowers decorating the tables where the guests were served. Masses of Summer flowers in col- orful arrangements made the au- ditorium an attractive setting for the quarterly meeting.

Nebraska grange orchestra opened the afternoon program with several selections; Miss Doris Hill, Scioto grange, played two piano solos, "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" and "Light a Candle in the Chapel"; monologue, "As Some Women Thinketh," Mrs. Austin Wilson, Logan Elm grange; violin solo, "Alp-Maid's Dream," Miss Emma Bowsher, ac- companied at the piano by Mrs. Dwight Rector, both members of Salt Creek Valley grange; vocal duets, "Whispering Hope" and "One Fleeting Hour," Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fisher, with piano accompaniments by Mrs. Herman Berger, Scioto Valley grange; playlet, "And Truth Goes March- ing On," Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Warner, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bo- lender, Mrs. Arthur Leist and daughter, Carol Ann, Mrs. G. M. Fausnaugh and Dale Bower and Donald Goodman, the guest of honor.

The fine meeting closed with group singing of three patriotic songs.

Columbus Guests
Mrs. Robert T. Liston and daughters, Helen and Bernice, of Columbus pike spent Friday in Columbus as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Conger and daugh- ter, Mrs. Herbert C. Hershey Jr. Mrs. Hershey, the former Marion Conger, who has been a frequent visitor in Circleville, is the guest of her parents while her husband, Captain Hershey, is attending Field Artillery school in Fort Sill, Okla. Learn the Truth About BOWEL WORMS
Roundworms can cause more trouble than you think. And these horrible creatures may be living and growing inside you or your child right now without your even knowing it. Because anybody, anywhere can "catch" this nasty ailment.

So, watch for the warning signs: fidget- ing, "icky" appetite, uneasy stomach, loss of weight, itchy nose or seat. Get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE if you even suspect round- worms. It's America's leading proprietary worm medicine; scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. JAYNE'S drives out stubborn large worms, yet acts very gently. When no worms are there it is just a mild laxative. Be sure you get JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE!

CAPITAL CHAFF

Revealing fact regarding the renomination of Representative Ham Fish, F. D. R.'s bitter foreign affairs critic, was that only 25,000 persons voted out of 140,000—in other words, chiefly the Ham Fish machine. . . . Rabbi Stephen S. Wise has been conferring privately with Russian Ambassador Litvinoff regarding the question of a Jewish army to bolster the Allies in the Near East. . . . Brazilians are disappointed over Admiral King's decision not to send Admiral A. T. Beaufort back to Brazil as U. S. Naval Attache. Beaufort had been there for years, helped to train most of the admirals in the Brazilian Navy. . . . Waldo Frank, the newsmen beaten up by Argentine fascists, also had had luck in Harlan county, Kentucky, some years ago when he was badly beaten up.

WATCH FOR NAZI DIVES

It escaped public notice, but the Navy has officially requested a New York court to impose a sentence of 20 years, the maximum, upon Gustav Beekman, keeper of a Brooklyn house of degradation in connection with which a certain U. S. senator was mentioned.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley stated on the Senate floor that his colleague was not present at the house, and this issue was not involved in the Navy's request for the maximum sentence. The real reason, as explained by a naval officer before the court, was much more significant.

The house of degradation had been used for the purpose of obtaining important information from American sailors frequenting the place.

It is also known that immorality of this type has been prevalent among the Nazis and was the cause of one Hitler purge. Three Nazi agents were picked up at the Brooklyn home, two of them found to be former German officers. Some American sailors frequented the place, and this may have been one source of the amazing shipping information which the Nazis have been getting in this country.

Authorities are now asking the cooperation of local communities in spotting and cleaning up dives of this type, most of which are cleverly camouflaged.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

While in Washington, former Vice President Jack Garner was noted for his thrifty habits and he is continuing them in retirement. In anticipation of increased excise taxes under the new war-tax bill, Garner has laid in a $1,600 stock of liquor. Capital cronies still fondly remember his famous invitation to a drink—"Let's strike a blow for liberty!" . . . Two of the crack young officers on the staff of Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger, able CO of the high-spirited 3rd Army, are Capt. William Thomason and Lieut. Ben Decker, son and son-in-law of Representative Ewing Thomason, militant Texas New Dealer. . . . Senator W. Lee O'Daniel, unpopular with the Texas delegation in Congress, has refused to join the Texas luncheon club. . . . FDR's private secretary Grace Tully avoids parties in the evening, stays at home playing gin rummy. . . . A Poughkeepsie, N. Y., merchant donated to the scrap rubber campaign 1,600 pounds of shopworn boots and rubbers, some marked "made in Japan." The merchant said he wanted to "send the rubber back to the Japs in a form they can feel."

TO THE HAMBLETONIAN VICTOR BELONGS THE SPOILS

Climax to the Hambletonian race at Goshen, N. Y., came when William H. Strang, left, owner of The Ambassador, winner of the harness classic, and Ben White, driver, second from left, received their trophies from James Cagney, movie actor, right. W. H. Cane, president of the Goshen tracks, is second from right. The Ambassador, a long shot, won the last two heats to cop the sulky event.

RED BIRDS KEEP GRASP ON LEAD

Sunday Split Leaves Race Unchanged; Colonels Only Double Winners

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—Columbus Red Birds remained one slim game ahead of the rest of the American Association pack today as a Sabbath split with the sixth-place Minneapolis Millers failed to change the standings.

The Millers broke a 12-game losing streak by taking the opener, 5-4, over a 12-inning route, but a three-hit performance in the nightcap by Ted Wilks gave the Birds a 2-0 shutout.

Second-place Kansas City failed to profit by the Birds' split they shared a twin-bill with seventh-place Indianapolis, dropping the first tilt, 4-2, but winning the second, 2-1.

Toledo, only a game and a half off the pace in third place, also suffered from splits, when last-place St. Paul snapped the Hens' eight-game win streak with a 6-4 victory. The Hens came back in the nightcap with a 5-4 win.

Only Louisville was able to win a twin bill, twice edging fourth-place Milwaukee, 3-2 and 2-1, to climb with 3 1/2 games of the leaders.

HOGAN ADDS ANOTHER TO LENGTHY VICTORY STRING

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 17—Ben Hogan, leading money winner of golfdom, today had added another $1,000 to his bag, by copying the $5,000 Times-Union open tournament. The Hershey, Pa., golf wiz had a final round 74, four over par, for a 72-hole aggregate of 278.

Craig Wood of Mamareonek was three strokes behind the 72 for 281 and a stroke behind Wood was Harold McSpaden of Philadelphia with a 73.

Fourth prize went to Ky Laffoon, of Miami, Okla., one of seven to equal par in the final round. Laffoon carded 283. Tied for fifth with 284 were Dutch Harrison, Camp Hill, Pa.; Mike Turnesa, Elmsford, Horton Smith, Springfield, Mo., and Ted Bishop, Waltham, Mass., amateur Jimmy Demaret, Detroit and Henry Ransom, North Hills, Pa., each had a 285.

BOUT POSTPONED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 17—The scheduled 10-round boxing match between Jack "Buddy" Walker and Joe Louis' sparring partner, Clarence Brown of Chicago has been postponed from tomorrow evening to Tuesday, August 25, it was announced today by Matchmaker Whitey Morrett. Insufficient time in which to train was forwarded by the Columbus Negro's manager, Lee Closson, in requesting the week's reprieve.

TIGER FOOTBALL CALL IS ISSUED

Practice To Begin Next Week With Coach Urging All To Be In Attendance

Circleville high school football practice will start next Monday, August 24, with Coach Roy Black calling for all candidates to report that day prepared for action.

Because of the heavy corn pack in which many boys of the squad are engaged, the practice is being postponed three days. It would have started Thursday, August 20.

Coach Black is hoping for a full attendance at Monday's drill because numerous positions in the varsity must be filled.

Guns—Planes—Tanks QUICK!

5 Reasons Why

- 1 By investing in War Bonds you help provide the planes, the tanks, the guns and the ships we must have to survive and conquer.
- 2 You prove that you are a patriotic American.
- 3 You aid the morale of our fighting men, by showing them that the entire Nation is behind them.
- 4 You prove to our enemies that we are a United People.
- 5 You protect your own financial future, as every $18.75 you invest in a War Bond brings you back $25 in 10 years. You make the world's safest investment, by buying a share in the world's most powerful country.

"LISTEN, Bud—glad to see you getting along. Sure, I know you've had to tighten your belt—for a long time you took it on the chin, and now you're getting good pay.

"That's O.K. with us soldiers. You've got your part to play, just as we have ours. You've got to make the stuff—and we've got to deliver it.

"But just a second . . . maybe it's none of our business, but, say, are you throwing your money around?

"Here's something straight from the shoulder. You see, we soldiers want to feel that we're not fighting alone—that you're behind us—every one of you, man, woman and youngster.

"How? Listen . . .

"How many WAR BONDS are you buying? Are you in on the Payroll Savings Plan? If you're not, you'll get in—won't you? This is your war—isn't it? We're fighting for you, aren't we?

"So look . . .

"When they come around to you, at your job, and ask you to put aside TEN PERCENT of your earnings every payday—a dime from every dollar—you'll do it, won't you—for us?

"You'll get a WAR BOND every time you've saved $18.75—and that Bond will build up, year by year, to $25 in ten years.

"So you're helping us and protecting yourself at the same time by your savings. Can't beat that, can you?

"We've got to have guns and planes, and tanks, and ships and bullets—and you've got to pay for them—from your own, voluntary WAR BOND savings.

"Invest a dime from every dollar in us—and keep it up, week after week, month after month. Then count on us to blast hell out of the Japs, the Huns, and their whole bloodthirsty gang.

"O.K., Bud—now let's go!"
